Monsieur Petite! taking photography under your guidance. And do I mean it!
I can really say that I've learned a lot and enjoyed all that I got to do!
It's nice to know there are as great of teachers around as you. I'm just sorry that its time for me to leave. But if you know me, I'll be back to say hi every now + then, don't get upset over students, don't let them get on your nerves like I did! a very happy life!
P.S. Your name will be in the history books!
P.S. I probably have a very happy life!
Always your student,
Kathleen Imanishi

Mr. Petite,
I really enjoyed your wit, and humor and I appreciate your help. You have been one of the main reasons
I have improved in photography. Good luck always.

Mr. Petite,
It has been really neat having you as a physics teacher. Hopefully I will be a good job next year, maybe I will even take physics. Well thanks again always

Granny Petter,
Five years at Franklin and my 3 years at Franklin and it's been something special. I'll remember our ~~Photo~~ Biology and Photography classes.
(Although I may not remember the material taught!) You've been more than a teacher, but a friend too, and
I thank you for that.
Wish you happiness always

Language Arts Piece Fits In

Standardization has become the key word for the L.A. department. This means that every LA 12 class is working on the same topic at the same time which also applies to all other levels. Keeping the same pace isn't an easy task because of the shortage of books,

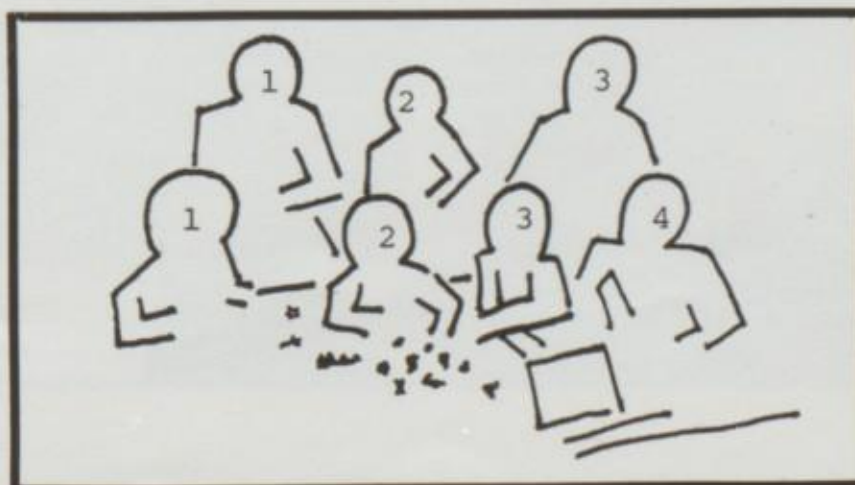

This year, included in the LA program is a Comparative Literature class. Students in the humanities program take this class to compare authors and philosophy, and, in general, go into a greater depth in the kinds of books they read.

The Science classes are coming on strong at Franklin with more students enrolled this year than before. Students take Biology, Chemistry, and Physics, along with Science Survey.

In addition to having regular science classes, some students are in the Alpha-Mentor Science. They choose their own topics to study independently and research and conduct their own experiments under teacher's supervision. The class gives the students a chance to excel; one student, for example, has bred fish while one grows tobacco plants and still another cultivates bacteria.

A. Mr. Motzer directs the attention of the class to the blackboard.

B. Mr. Morgenstern demonstrates his scientific skill.

C. The Science department is amused over experiment results. 1. Mr. Petite, 2. Ms. Bannister, 3. Mr. Morgenstern, 4. Mr. Vann, 5. Mr. Motzer. Not pictured - Mr. Bundy.

D. Mr. Petite shows the forces of gravity in action.

C. Mr. Konkel putting assignments on board.

with Practice

Franklin is the only one of the 12 Seattle high schools with an advanced placement foreign language program. The students in these classes do college-level work in Spanish and German. They study literature and improve speaking and listening skills. Their intention is to take a standardized national exam during the end of the year to receive college credits.

Students can learn to converse in seven languages here. Franklin is the only school that offers Tagalog, it is taught by Ms. Guerzon; Mr. Konkel has returned to teach French; Ms. Santisteban re-introduced Latin and also teaches Spanish; Ms. Mayer offers two levels of German; Ms. Tien specializes in Mandarin, and Ms. Jitodai teaches her native language Japanese.

Oral communication is emphasized so students are encouraged to carry on a conversation in a foreign language.

Social Studies Map New Routes

With Franklin gaining the Humanities Magnet, several new classes are now being offered in the Social Studies department. The Humanities course is directed toward helping students understand and talk about the arts: music, painting and architecture. A class of World Civilization, also part of the humanities program, examines various systems of civilizations, social history, the history of artistic expression and the reaction of society to change. Field trips to Olympia and the Seattle Art Museum are some of the places that the classes visit.

Urban Seattle has become another new field of study. Mrs. Rybock started the Urban Seattle class to help acquaint students with Seattle's history and the problems in urban centers. Many exciting field trips are planned for the class, such as visiting underground Seattle, Ballard locks and fishladder, Seattle Aquarium and Rainier Brewery. The class is offered only during 6th period and a field trip is taken every Thursday afternoon. Speakers such as Mayor Royer also come out to help share ideas on community projects and problems.

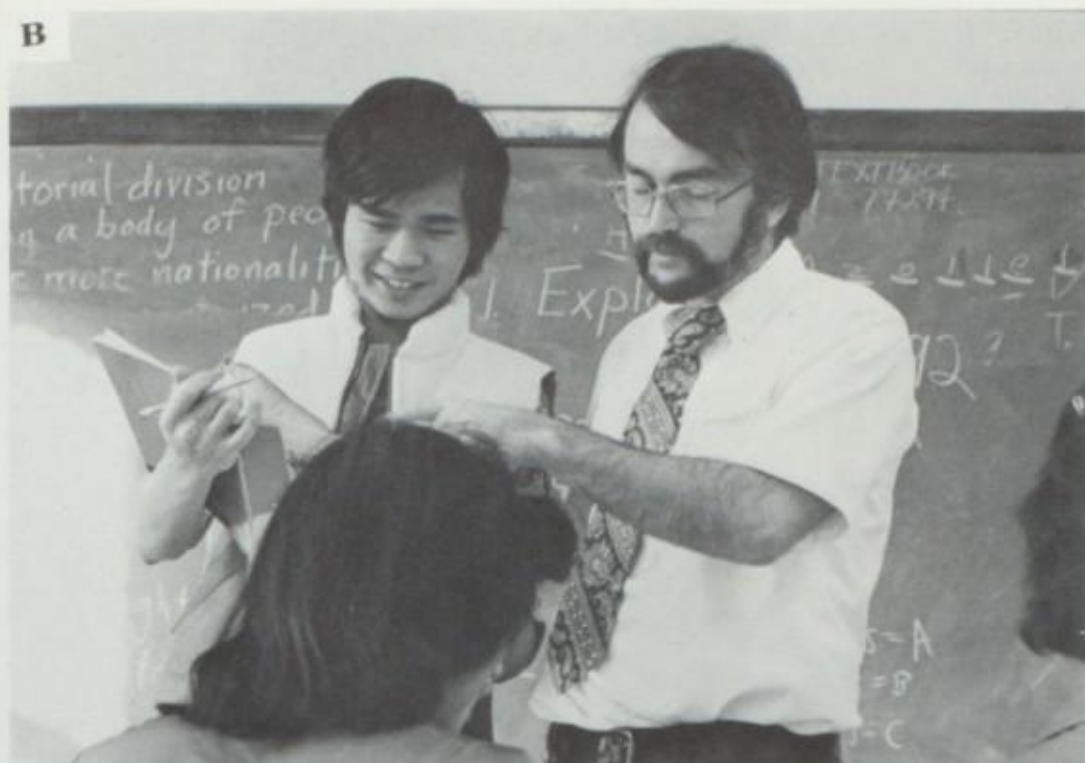

Contemporary Society deals with aiding students to understand and cope with the problems and pressures faced in today's society.

Franklin students also deal with the question of discrimination, criminal law and court procedures in Mr. Rick Nagel's Law and Society class.

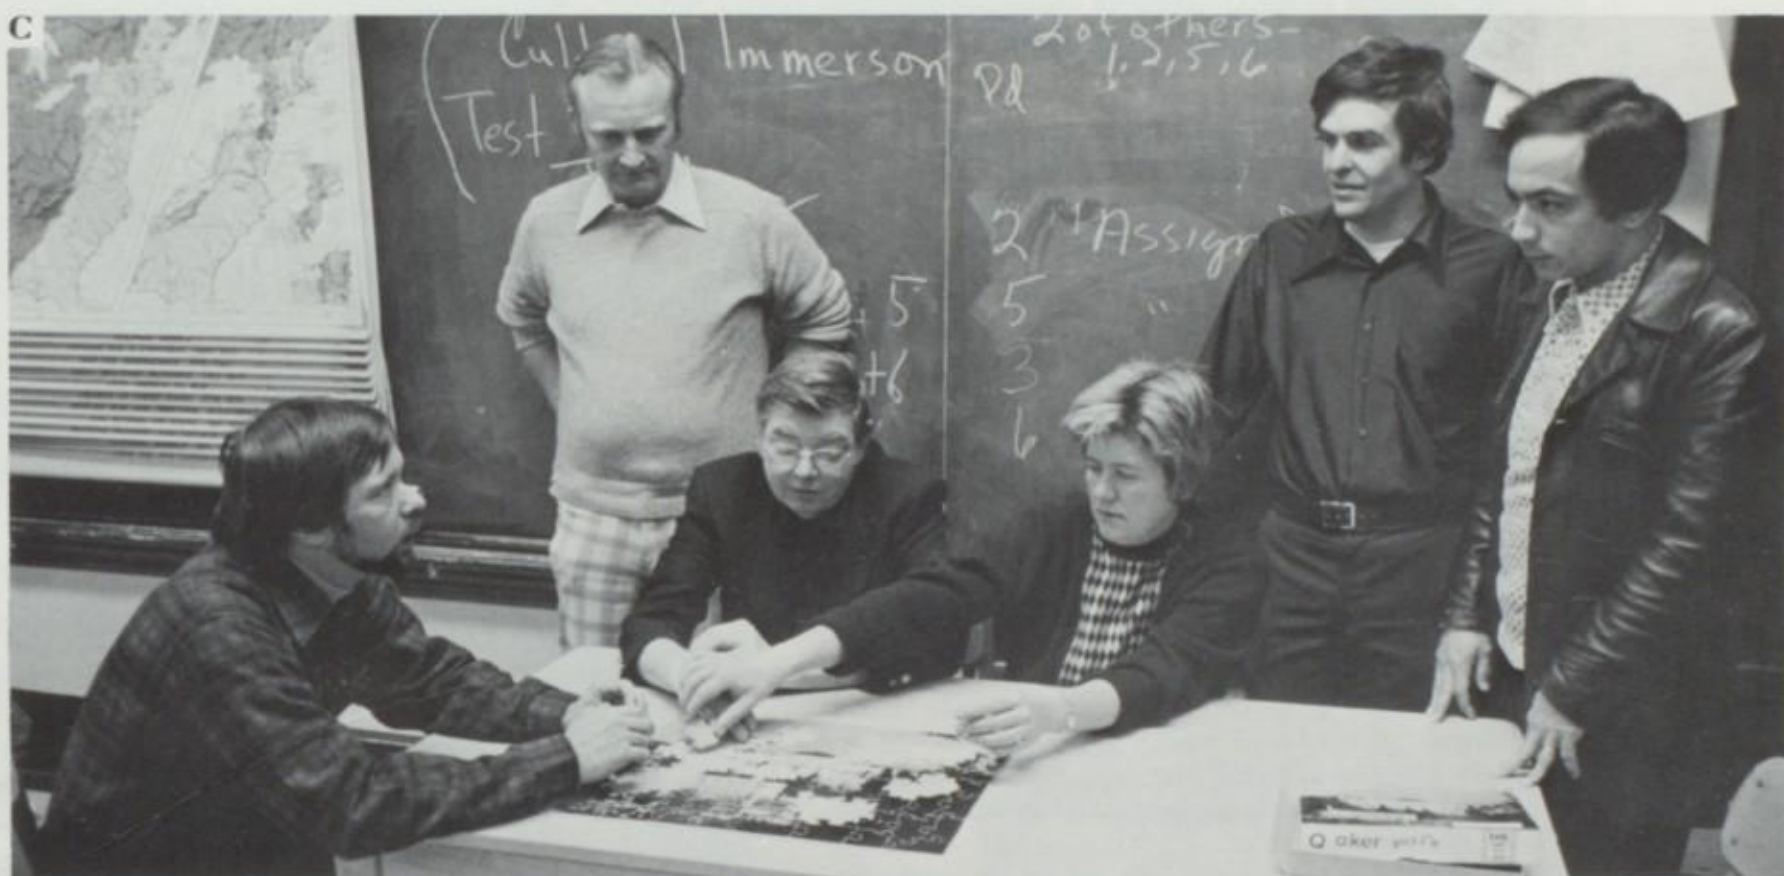

Mr. Dave Belmonte's Alpha-Mentor class is currently writing a book. The contents of the book are researched, written, edited, and typed by the students while Mr. Belmonte supervises. This project is a compilation of biographies of leaders in their respective minority groups. It is intended for use on the 5th or 6th grade levels to broaden the scope of students' knowledge about the different ethnic groups.

Careers Solve Job Puzzles

Due to the Career Magnet Program, the Home Economics Department is expanding. This program focuses primarily on the F.E.A.S.T. and Sewing for Profit classes. F.E.A.S.T. bake sales are an added attraction this year, featuring such popular items as apple turnovers, gingerbread cookies, and scones. It also prepares luncheons for the school faculty. A field trip to the Olympic Hotel to view food preparations is one of the main events of the class.

The Sewing for Profit class work on projects and go on field trips as well. One of their projects is making the African Drum Ensemble costumes. Field trips have been made to such places as the Far West Garment Company and John Doyle Bishops - a design shop here in Seattle.

Other classes offered by the Home Ec. Department are: the Alpha-Mentor class for those talented in this area; Crafts, featuring macrame and rugmaking; and Multi Ethnic Foods for those interested in studying delicacies of other lands.

Ranging from typing to learning about the business world, the business department prepares students to face the world after high school. Distributive Education and Co-op Office are both work study programs. The Distributive Ed. class requires students to work in the Quaker Shoppe. This provides good training for working in retail stores. Students must have a job or receive help in finding one if enrolled in the class. Co-op Office is offered Spring semester. Students spend half the day in school learning office procedures and the other half working in a real office, thus, making practical use of their skills.

Pieces: 1st Row (L to R): Nancy Bush - Home Ec. Dept. Head, Sew. Profit I-II-Adv.; Jan Hilsenberg - Gen. Home Ec., F.E.A.S.T.; Carol Phillips - Cloth. & Textiles, Gen. Home Ec., Multi Ethnic Fds. 2nd Row: Malver Haynes - Business Dept. Head, AcctI-II-III-IV; Mary Chaney - Acct. I, Typing I-II-IV; Kathryn LaBelle -Dist. Ed. D. Home Ec teachers pause from sewing to share a joke. 1. Ms. Hilsenberg; 2. Ms. Bush; 3. Ms. Phillips.

E. Practicing to keep up with her typing students is Ms. Chaney.

Creative Arts Interlock

Teaching students to use their creativity and imagination is the goal of the Art Department. Mr. Robert Arnold's three-dimensional art classes (Ceramics, Design Lab) are taught the basics in line, color, texture, balance and contrast. Mobiles, stabiles, and various forms of pottery are results of the students' creativity.

The Alpha-Mentor Jewelry class is geared to individual projects. Each student must first start by making a ring. This helps the student become acquainted with shaping and designing such materials as silver, copper, brass and wood. After this first project, the student is free to create a wide variety of items. These include necklaces, bracelets and pendants with each having their own unique shape, design and texture.

- A. Finishing touches to pottery are added by Mr. Arnold.
- B. Mr. Ehrgott smooths down rough spots on student's cabinet.
- C. Mr. Todd looks over student's handiwork.
- D. Mr. Lee conducts as musicians play on.
- E. Concentration is shown by Mr. Boyd on designing a ring.

The buzzing of saws, the forging of metal, and the delicate scratching of pencils are some of the sounds coming from the Industrial Arts Department. Headed by Mr. George Ehrgott, the department offers Woodshop, Technical and Architectural Drawing, Metal Shop, and Electronics.

Woodshop and Metal Shop put out many interesting and unique objects. These include speaker enclosures, lamps, wooden goblets, candle holders and tool boxes.

The Drawing and Electronics classes focus on the basics in drafting and putting together electrical gadgets.

The Music Department, under the direction of Mr. Ed Lee, is all jazzed up and in tune. Whether it be singing a Billie Holiday tune or blowing the trumpet, the students are given the opportunity to express themselves. This can be done through taking classes such as the African Drum Ensemble, Jazz Lab, Jazz Choir, Band or Piano.

Pieces: 1st Row (L to R): George Turk - Dept. Head, Alg. II, Alpha Mentor Math, Honors Geom.; Linda Anderson - Geom., Math 10-11-12; Vernon Bean - Alg. III-IV, Geom., Min Comp. 12, Ticket Squad Advisor. 2nd Row: Larry Brooks - Alg. I, Adv. Math, Comp. Programming I-II, Men's Soccer Coach; John Campbell - Alg. A. Mr. Brooks clarifies a difficult problem to his Adv. Math class.

B. Mrs. Kelly shows her enthusiasm for teaching math.

C. Mr. Campbell looks over student's homework.

D. Math Dept. poses for crucial annual deadline. (sitting): 1. Mr. Granatir, 2. Mr. Kennan. (standing): 1. Mr. Bean, 2. Mr. Campbell, 3. Ms. Kelly, 4. Mr. Turk, 5. Mr. Brooks, 6. Ms. McCollom, 7. Mr. Henrikson.

It's All So Puzzling

Headed by Mr. George Turk, the Math Department offers diversity in the mathematics field. Courses ranging from Computer Programming to Calculus are available for students who wish to broaden their knowledge in math. Two especially unique parts of the math curriculum are the Alpha-Mentor and Min-Cap programs.

The Alpha-Mentor class is designed for students who excel in the mathematical world of numbers and figures. It gives these students an opportunity to challenge new fields in math not regularly taught in class. Matrix algebra, probability, advanced computer math and linear-algebra are some of the projects currently being attacked by students. Two sophomores are already completing honors geometry and advanced math classes within one semester's time.

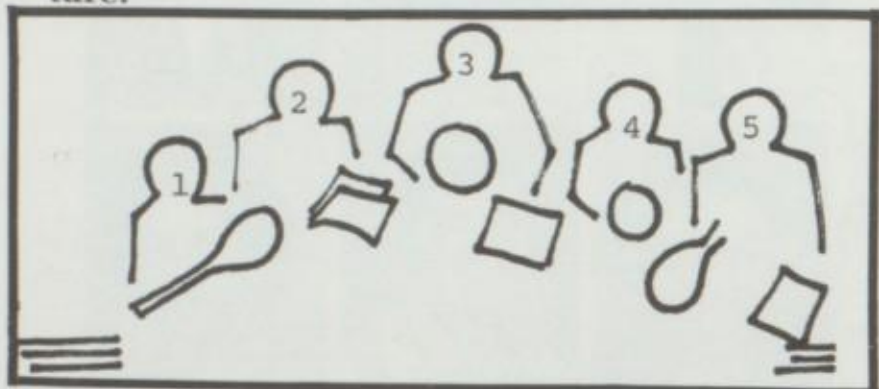

Min-Cap math is a program oriented to aid students who haven't passed the minimum competency test. Jody Granatir and Ralph Kennan work with these students to improve and further develop their skills in mathematics.

Physical Fitness Strengthens the Body

Teaching sports that can be enjoyed by students throughout their lives is the main objective of the P.E. department, according to department head Mr. Dick Luft. By offering new classes such as Gymnastics, this idea is certainly holding true. Other courses being offered include Basketball, Tennis, Weight Training, Individual Sports, and Team Sports. The active program of this department enables and motivates students to remain fit and active beyond their high school years.

A. Ms. Wesley contemplates over her day's work.

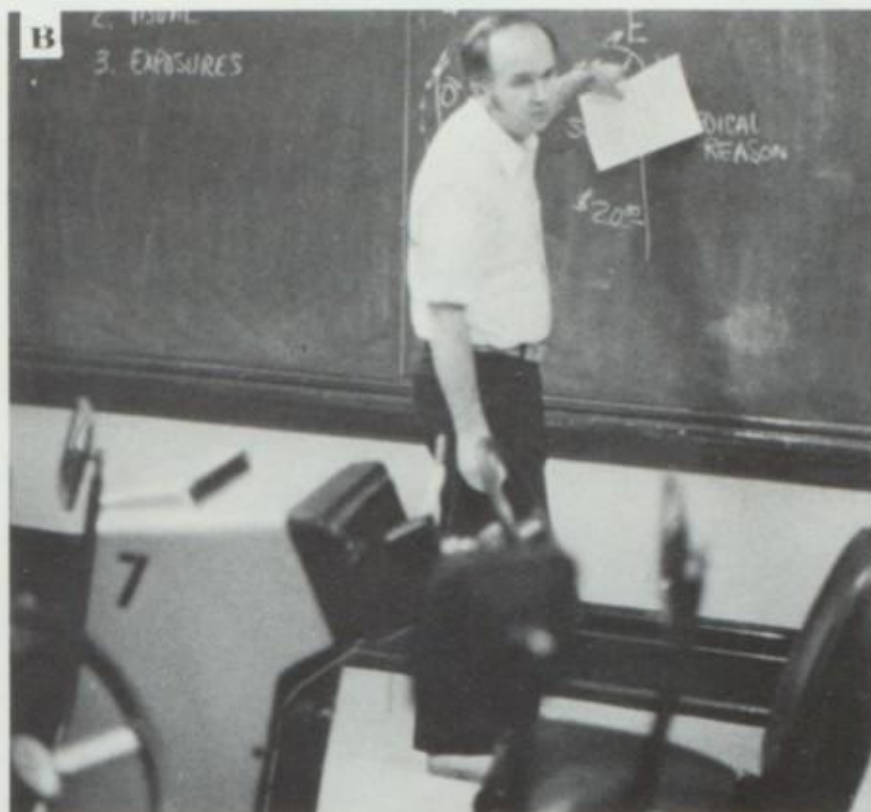

B. Mr. Raich clarifies a rule in driving.

C. Human Relations Aid Ms. Koura gives her help in the Career Center.

D. Ms. Lehr and Ms. Patton look over U.S. map.

Unique Parts of the Learning Process

The Special Programs at Franklin are numerous. Each has a unique function and is a necessary part of school. The General Educational Development program helps students who are behind in the graduation credits. Mrs. Sylvia Wesley helps prepare them in subject areas of science, social studies, literature, math and grammar. Students then take a test which will give them a high school equivalency diploma.

Lessons are designed to motivate each individual. Help is also given to students on how to cope in the world after high school.

Another special program at Franklin is geared for those students who have difficulties relating in regular classroom situations. Ms. Joan Davis and Ms. Sylvia Wesley works closely with these individuals to help them re-adjust to a new program.

LLD aids students with Learning Language Disabilities. Each individual works on the same materials with Ms. Gertrude Spencer. However, the academic requirements are based on each individual's ability.

The Human Relations Associates, Linda Koura and Ventres Green, help students wherever possible. They answer questions raised by students ranging from college plans to opportunities in the working world, tutor those individuals who need it, help students fill out forms, and aid those students looking for a job.

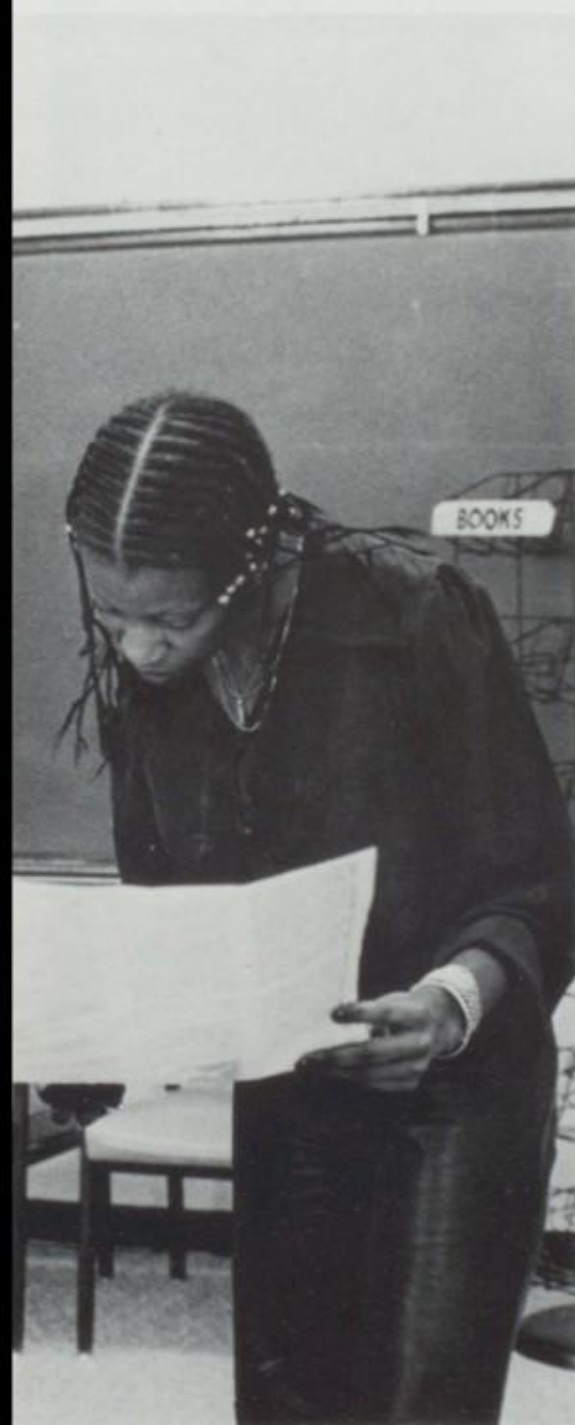

Drivers Education, headed by Mr. Mike Raich, teaches students the basics in driving. With simulated and on-street instructions, the students get the feel of the car both in practice and on the road. At the same time, the in-class instruction help students to learn the rules and responsibilities involved in driving.

In addition to the Special Programs and teaching faculty, there are several individuals who contribute greatly to the needs of this puzzle.

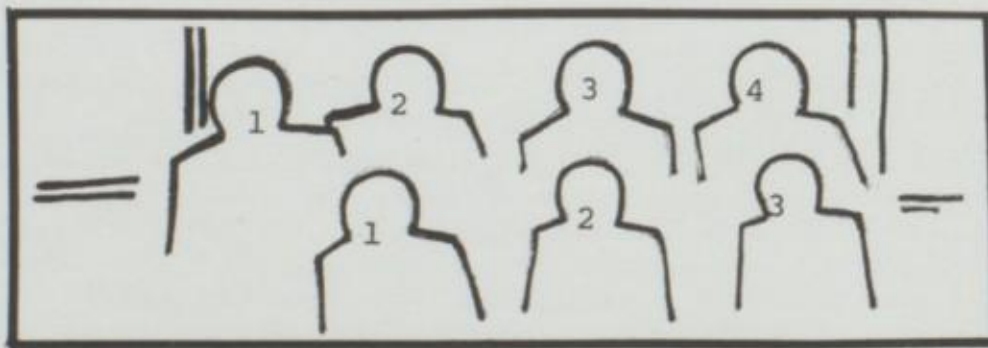

Ms. Joyce Maib, Activities Coordinator, can be found preparing the activities budget or working on program ideas in the S.A.C. office. She provides leadership by working with the class and A.S.B. officers, monitoring all fund-raising activities, and taking charge of the Associated Bus Program.

Kathy Lehr is in the Career Research Center counseling and giving advice to students who need or desire information on career opportunities. Ms. Lehr is assisted by Pat Patton. Together, they aid students in preparing for their future.

Mary Miller, the resident nurse, does more than applying bandages and taking temperatures. She serves as a Health Counselor working with mentally, physically and emotionally handicapped students. Through her, individuals with special needs may obtain health and dental care.

School Personnel Joins Pieces Together

A. The secretaries gather after a long day. (sitting): 1. Doris Abe - Guidance Sec., 2. Anna Nielsen - Head Sec., 3. Barbara Scott - Bookroom Treas. (standing): 1. Agnes Wazny - Reg. Sec., 2. Marva Brown - Asst. Sec., 3. Lucille Caughron - V.P. Sec., 4. Ella Pitre - Attend. Sec.

B. Brant Elliot discusses a student's future.

C. Betty Manning expresses her thoughts to Earle Johnson on librarial matters.

D. Neil Woolslayer counsels Debbie Maas.

The bonds which keep Franklin in one piece are the Secretaries. Anna Nielsen serves as head receptionist in the main office. She coordinates the graduation program with Mr. Ben Canada. Assistant secretary, Marva D. Brown types the daily bulletin and letters to parents. The phone and switchboard are also under her care. Lucille Caughron works in the vice principal's office. She arranges conferences for the vice principals.

Questions such as "When's the Washington Pre-College Test?, When do test scores return?, What conferences are there?" are directed at Doris Abe, guidance secretary. Mrs. Abe answers these questions in addition to scheduling conferences with counselors and college representatives, answering phones, and keeping her student assistants busy.

The constant cycle of paperwork keeps Agnes Wazny busy in the registration office. Her time is spent recording grades, working on program changes and class schedules, and keeping track of all the IBM data that runs through the office.

Ella Pitre collects and maintains student attendance data. She also records absences, suspensions, early dismissals and field trips. Responsible for the textbooks in the Stockroom is Barbara Scott. She also keeps track of the money received for Driver's Education, Shop, field trips and the various school organizations' treasuries.

The Franklin counseling staff consists of three dedicated people who advise students on problems and future plans or just to chat and answer questions.

Betty Sawyer aids the sophomores with registration, difficulties in classes, and any other problems or concerns they may have during their first year in high school. Brant Elliot and Neal Woolslayer both work with juniors and seniors. They talk with and counsel students about college plans, financial aid, meeting graduation and/or college entrance requirements, family related problems, and finding jobs.

The Franklin library is not a place for "group interaction" and to assure the students a quiet place in which to work, the librarians, Mr. Earle Johnson and Mrs. Betty Manning, ask the students to sign in during the lunch hours.

"The fun part of being a librarian is helping students with their research projects," said assistant Betty Manning. "Being an ogre to keep the place peaceful is no fun."

The librarians assist the teachers in numerous ways from accepting entire classes to utilize the library to checking out audio visual materials and ordering films.

The security and the tidiness of our school as well as the satisfaction of full stomachs are due to Franklin's special pieces: the lunchroom staff, custodians, and the security staff.

Unity allows the lunchroom staff to promptly serve breakfast and lunch. The efficient workers have assigned duties, but all help each other. They work together planning and varying menus and preparing for the meals.

Comfort and cleanliness of Franklin are maintained by the custodians. They keep the floors clean, and the lighting and heating systems in working condition.

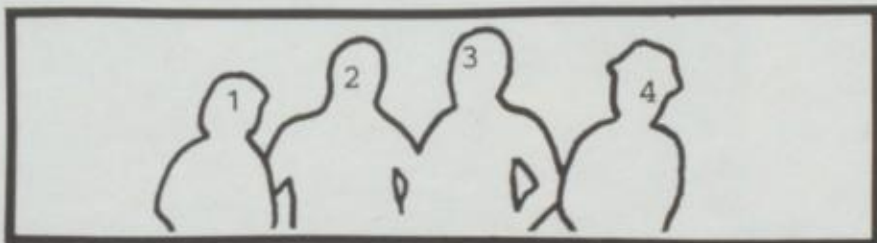

The security staff is enforcing the hall policy with the penalty of a three-day suspension for students loitering without hall passes during class. The two staff members watch for outsiders, handle locker thieves and also supervise the lunchroom. Preventing or stopping fights is another responsibility. Robert Dickey remarks, "We keep the peace."

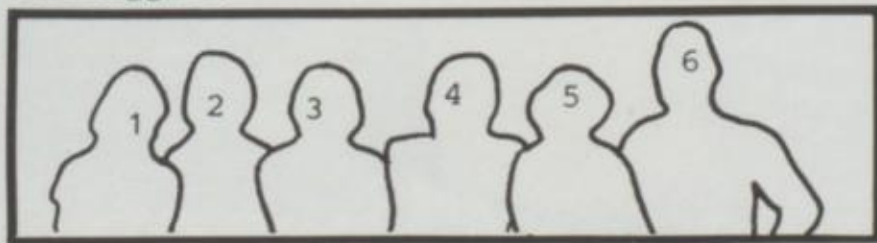

Vital Components Maintain Condition of Puzzle

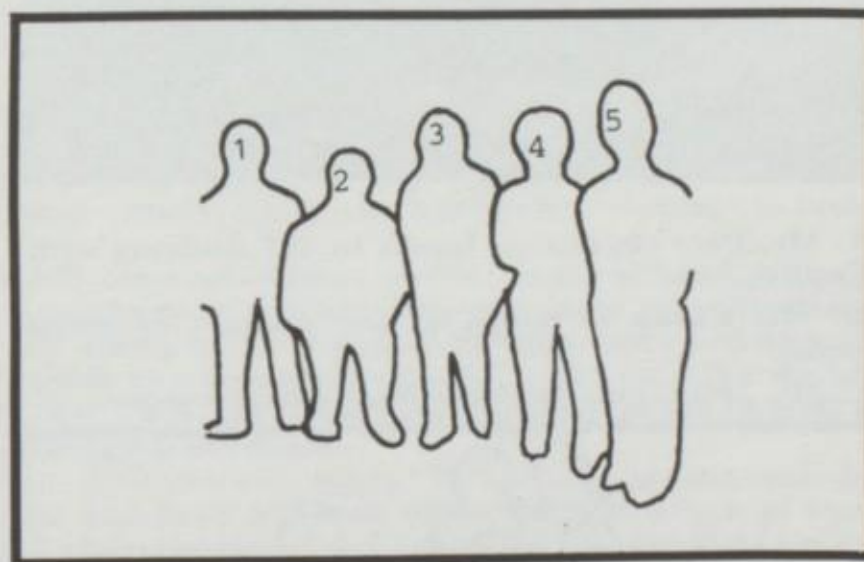

A. Clinton Wong relaxes in security office as Robert Dickey looks on.

B. Custodians take a much needed coffee break. 1. Carl Huelett; 2. George Phillips; 3. Ed Sharick; 4. Ernie Driggers.

C. Lunchroom staff relaxes after the noon rush. 1. Marge Koenigs, Head; 2. Marie Clisby; 3. Frances Stowell; 4. Audrey Oreg; 5. Dorothy Florian; 6. James Roberto.

D. Night custodians take a rest in the boiler room. 1. Andy Robinson; 2. Don Butchard; 3. Roland Olson; 4. Robert Potts; 5. Russell Miller.

Different Facets of Languages Overcome Barriers

The purpose of the bilingual program is not only to help new foreign-born students acquire English skills, but also to have them "Learn the American way of life" says Gladys C. Chinn, bilingual secretary and instructional assistant for the Chinese. Sonia C. Javidando, Filipino bilingual teacher, adds, "They also learn about each other's cultures." The cultures include Chinese from Taiwan, Hong Kong and the mainland, Vietnamese, Burmese, Japanese, Korean, Laotian, Samoan and Chilean.

Bilingual teachers specialize in Language Arts of three levels and help students in their other classes as well. They also assist students in selecting colleges and in applying for jobs. The bilingual program enables the recent immigrants to adapt to society.

The Title VII program works together, hand in hand, with the bilingual program since teachers help the same set of students. The Title VII staff translates materials from other teachers for the ESL (English as a Second Language) students. Like the bilingual staff, the Title VII people are administrators as well as counselors (handling referrals).

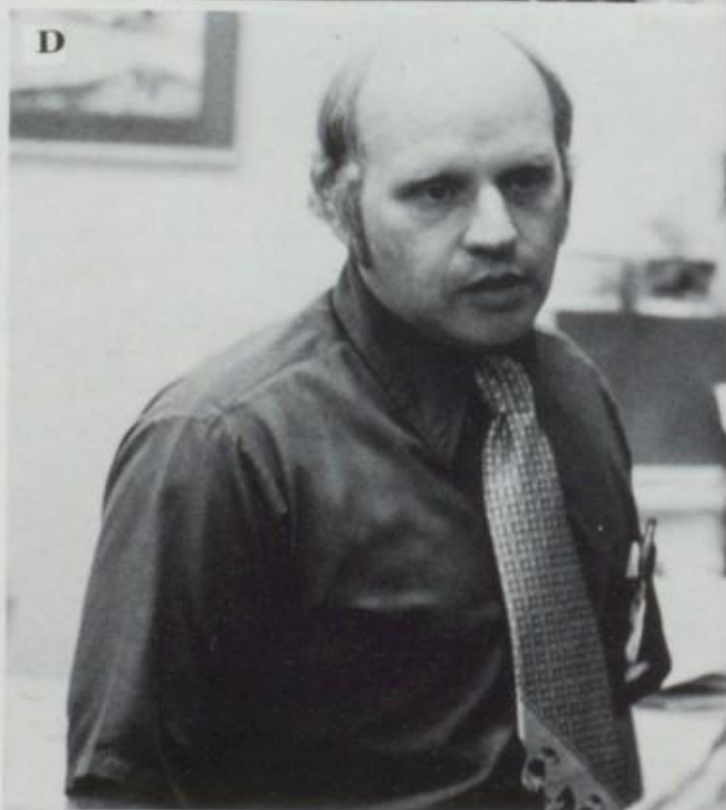

Susan Dino, Filipino aid, says, "We act as a go-between for these students and their teachers where there is a lack of communication." Other instructional assistants are Ale Pele for the Samoan students and Cindy Tam for the new Chinese students.

The bilingual and the Title VII program allow foreign-born students to fit into the Franklin puzzle.

Administration Picks Up the Pieces

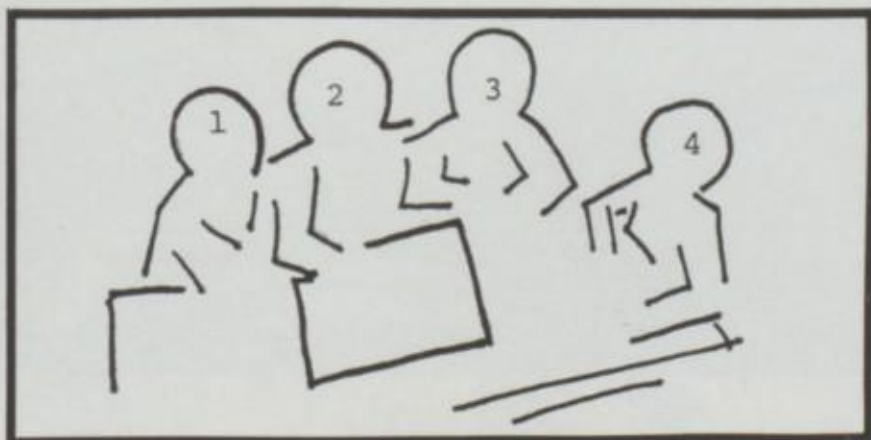

The Administration works together to keep the Franklin pieces in place. As our new principal, Mr. Benjamin Canada is eager to increase the general academic performance and to arouse more school spirit. Mr. Charles Chinn takes charge of the transportation and Alpha-Mentor programs in addition to his responsibilities as senior vice-principal. The special education and bilingual programs are under the authority of Mrs. Joan Roberson, also vice-principal for juniors. Mr. William Phelan, vice-principal for sophomores and registrar, also handles the athletic programs.

- A. Mr. Canada registers a student.
B. Mr. Chinn studies a problem.
C. Ms. Roberson smiles at the day's end.
D. Mr. Phelan advises a student.
E. Fitting in the last pieces of the puzzle are: 1. William Phelan - Vice Principal; 2. Benjamin Canada - Principal; 3. Joan Roberson - Vice Principal; 4. Charles Chinn - Vice Principal.

Class of '80

Even without an advisor or officers, the Class of '80 started fund raising with a popcorn ball sale sold at the Volleyball games.

In November, two concerned teachers volunteered to be advisors. With elections over, the new officers, advisors, and students continued to plan activities which include a disco, candy sale, car wash, Saint Patrick's Day 4-leaf competition, and a Special Sophomore Day.

With the profit of these activities, the Class of '80 looks forward to an exotic holiday in their senior year, to replace the traditional cruise.

A. Sheila Henderson, President.

B. Ms. Sinclair & Ms. Stack, Advisors.

C. (L to R): Melanie Grant, Vice-president; Julie Chan, Secretary; Lillian Quan, treasurer; and Karri Chin, Chairperson of Chairpersons.

The Class of '79's Christmas present to Franklin was a Christmas Ball to increase holiday spirit. Students danced under mistletoe and a revolving glass ball. Earlier in the year, they had a finger-licking good barbeque chicken luncheon in the S.A.C. Fund-raising events were planned, said vice-president Sherry Cal, because "We want to do more than go on a cruise for our senior year."

The Junior Class officers were:

- A. Yvonne Phillips, president.
- B. From L. to R.: Sherry Cal, vice-president; Hedy Valdez, secretary; Toni McKinney, treasurer; Christina Ng, chairperson of chairpersons.
- C. Gertrude Spencer acted as their advisor.

Mr. Petite,
 I sure had a lot of fun in your Physics and Photography classes this year. your help in Photography is greatly appreciated and as a Physics teacher your tips. The way you present your material is very refreshing, I enjoy it. Good luck next year and in the years to come.
 Peter B Melin

A. Jim McElroy concentrates on the foosball game as Brenda Boswell gazes at the television.

B. Shouting spirit into the megaphone is mascot Peter Melin.

C. Franklin Costales awaits the next note at a practice session.

D. Crowding around the Chinese food sale are Cindy Laundry, Sue Tang, Regina Lee, and Ms. May Chan. E. Talking over the trial are Kathleen Imanishi and Lawrence Bigham from the play "Twelve Angry Jurors".

Students Snack and Whack in the S.A.C.

More accessories add to the well-dressed Student Activity Center. Table tennis, a potato chip machine, a television, and a $300 foosball machine provide enjoyment and more money for the A.S.B. The foosball table makes $10 a day when in operation and all the vending machines total over $350 a month.

In its second year of existence, the S.A.C. is being used by more groups such as the Art Club and Homecoming Float committee. The Haunted Hop, various food sales, meetings, and fund raisers are also held in the center.

The S.A.C. serves as a lounge and an alternative where students can spend their free or lunch period. It is open from second to sixth period, depending upon staff supervision, and is active with students listening to the stereo system, playing games, snacking, reading, and relaxing in an unique environment.

A. Alice Villar and Jonina Ramos quench their thirst at the cold drink vending machine.

B. Watching Password is Charlotte Gaines; Jim McElroy rests on his elbow.

D. Gathered around the chess game are Charles Webster, Gilbert Burgess, Brian Neer, and Phillip Harnsberry.

E. Junior Vau anticipates the ping pong ball.

Special Aids Give Service

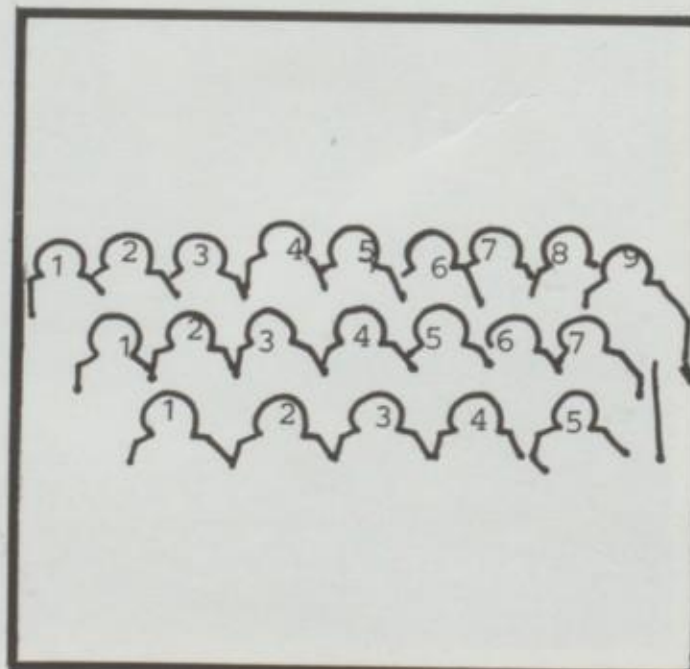

A. Special Aides take time from their meeting to pose together. Sitting: 1. Wendy Kawakami; 2. Donna Masumoto; 3. Linda Luke, co-secretary; 4. Lauren Chinn; 5. Nina Egashira. Kneeling: 1. Geri Lam, copresident; 4. Carol Chan; 5. May Chin; 6. Joyce Chin; 7. Doris Chan; 8. Neva Buyco; 9. Ms. Frances Mayer, Advisor; 10. Craig Kuwahara. Not pictured: Colleen Chan; Mr. Dave Knight, Kiwanis representative.

B. Colleen Chan squints as annual photographer clicks his camera. With Colleen is Cathy LaFountaine, one of the teens Special Aides work with.

C. Jolene Tom and Geri Lam hold a meeting to discuss their monthly activities while Lauren Chinn clips coupons to benefit the Kidney Center in the background.

D. Neva Buyco assists Joy Truman in picking out Christmas gifts at Southcenter.

Special Aides is a group of dedicated and devoted students working for a good cause. Its members take part in helping the mentally and/or physically handicapped persons from the community.

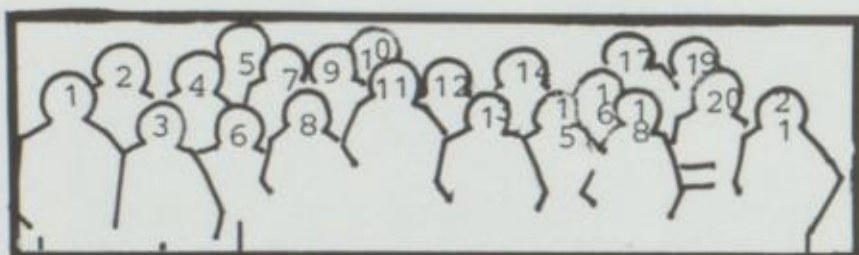

With the assistance of advisor Ms. Frances Mayer and Mr. Dave Knight, the Downtown Kiwanis Club representative, the organization plans activities with the handicapped teens and elderly in the neighborhood. Such outings include a shopping spree to Southcenter, a Halloween party, Christmas carolling with the Cleveland High School Special Aides, and a tour to the Seattle Aquarium. The Special Aides also have an annual Christmas stocking sale with proceeds going to the Cerebral Palsy Center.

The club meets every Tuesday after school, and individual members visit the Restorative Care Center, a nursing home, on Thursdays and Fridays. This service group gives companionship, care, and provides occasional entertainment to the residents.

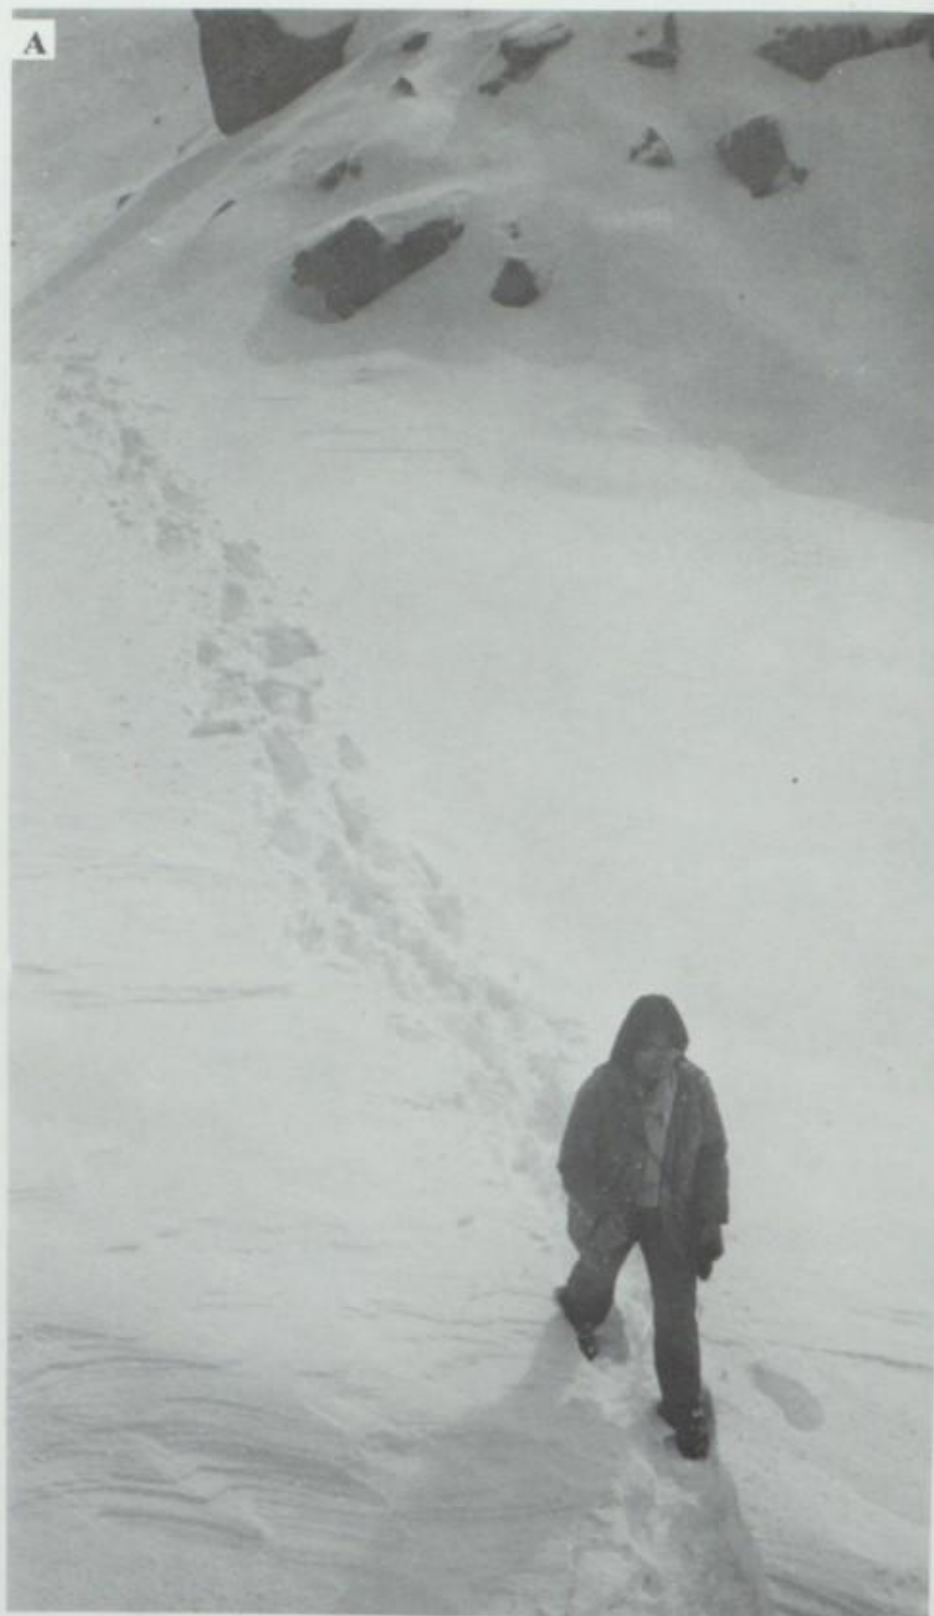

Hiking Club: Exploration Northwest

Exploring Washington's natural splendor is Franklin's own Hiking Club. Hiking through Mt. Fremont's deep snow in Mt. Rainier National Park, visiting Fort Flagler's military ruins on Marrowstone Island, and a trip to the beaches in Larabee State Park, provides an "escape" for its students and advisors. The advisors: Ms. Betty Manning, Ms. Nancy Mason, and Mr. William Motzer accompany members on their expeditions which take place on weekends.

A. Patty Chinn explores through the early snow on Mt. Fremont.

B. The energetic hikers are: 1. Stewart Sabel; 2. May Chin; 3. Patty Chinn; 4. Mark Rolstad; 5. Lance Haroldson; 6. Gretchen Sabel; 7. Rodney Konishi; 8. Eileen Smith; 9. Gwen Gwilym; 10. Ms. Betty Manning; 21. Sally Eckert. Not pictured: Linda Erickson, Kenny Ma, Ms. Nancy Mason and Colleen Smith.

Debaters Argue Medical Care

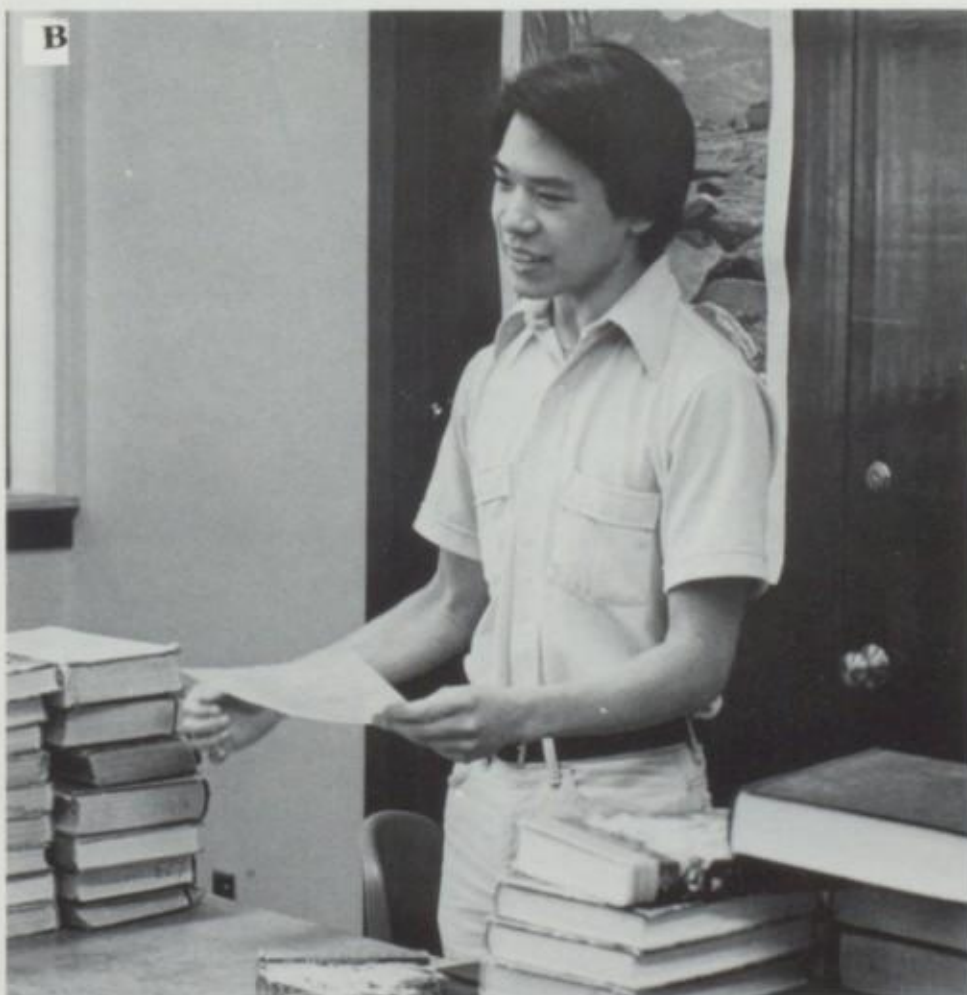

The Debate Team is a group of students who are interested in advancing their knowledge of speaking skills and oral interpretation. In addition to defending Franklin in the Metro League Junior Varsity Debate on the topic of public health care, members also participate in extra curricular individual events. The categories of these individual events are: expository, extemporaneous, impromptu, oratory, and interpretive reading.

Despite a late start, the inexperienced members show their potential at a state competition in Bellingham by placing in seven out of nine rounds and winning four out of six rounds. A major event in the team's schedule is hosting an all-city Reverend Martin Luther King oratory contest at Franklin. The prize is a $25 Savings Bond sponsored by the NAACP in memory of the late Franklin teacher, Al Larkins.

A. The successful debate team consists of: 1. Connie Wang; 2. Michael Look; 3. Paola Maranan; 4. Juliette Dong; 5. Ms. Sara Kaplan, Advisor; 6. Melanie Grant. Not pictured: Raleigh Watts, coach.

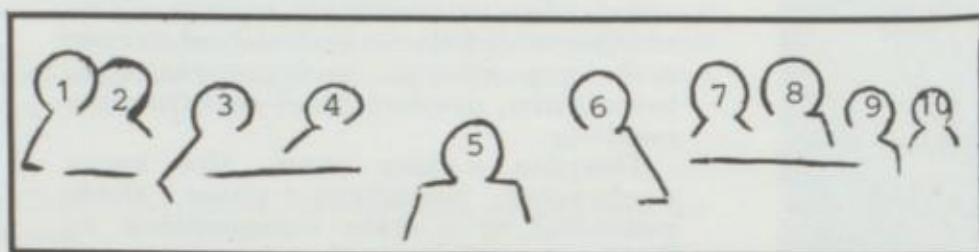

B. Michael Look practices a speech before his teammates.

Trial Debuts Acting Season

A. Janine Drebin elocutes on testimony and evidence as Richard West listens attentively.

B. Debating the verdict are the angry jurors: 1. Judy Boerner; 2. Kathleen Imanishi; 3. Jill Chan; 4. Janine Drebin; 5. Marcus Price; 6. Lisa Sprinkle; 7. Mark Houge; 8. Tony Jorgensen; 9. Victor Deloney; 10. Richard West.

Transposing the stage into a courtroom, Drama Productions made their debut with "Twelve Angry Men". However, it was retitled "Twelve Angry Jurors" to allow for the casting of female performers. The actors and actresses give an afternoon performance and two evenings shows for a near capacity audience in the Franklin auditorium.

The tremendous success of the play is due to the strong commitment of the performers aided by the director and drama teacher, Mr. Paul Nicholas. The production of "Twelve Angry Jurors" is an example of the drama excellence at Franklin.

Dedicated actors and actresses are recognized and spotlighted by Thespians, an international honorary club. Membership is awarded to students with a minimum of 10 points earned through working on or appearing in stage productions. The number of Thespians from Franklin are small due to the limited opportunities to accumulate eligibility points.

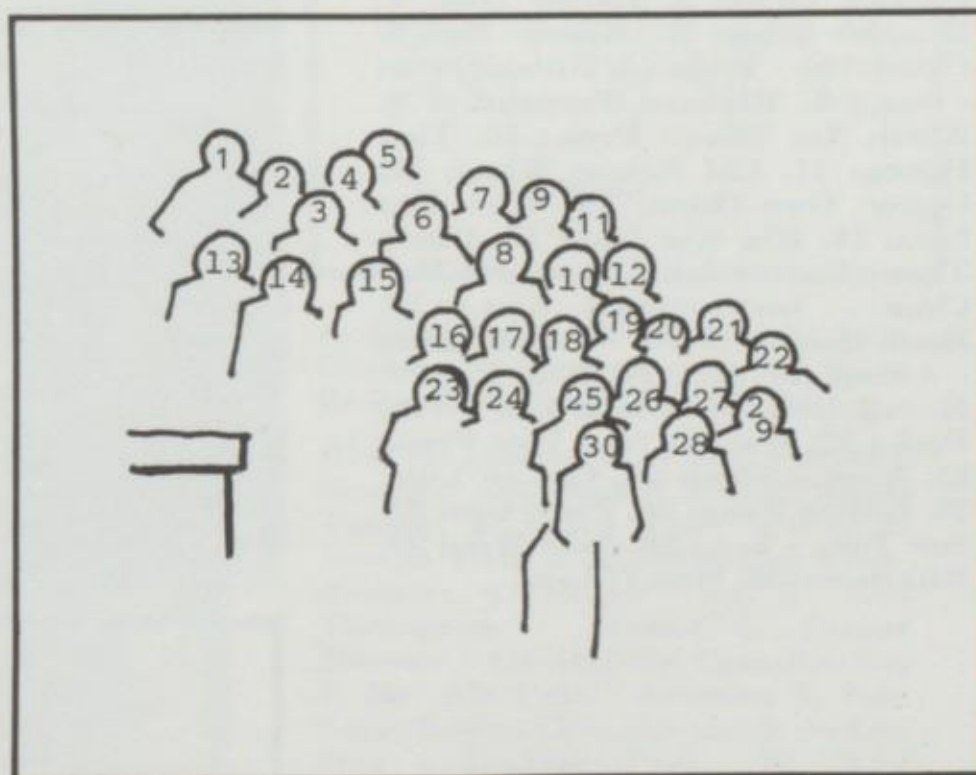

Filipinos Focus On Togetherness

The Filipino Student Association focuses on togetherness by uniting among themselves and with other Filipino students for social functions and community support.

Activities include a skating party and a dinner for Filipino graduates. Members also rally for the new trial of two Pinay nurses and for the overturning of the Bakke decision. To fund their events, the Filipino students sponsor a disco and lunchtime lumpia sales.

A. Selling lumpia are Corinne Carrido, Pacita Cabanaag, and Franklin Costales.

B. Members of the Filipino Student Association are: 1. Mardina Monce; 2. Lani de Castro; 3. Pacita Cabanaag; 4. Nelson Damo; 5. Rey Abellanosa; 6. Mario Layacan; 7. Orlando Montoya - Co-Vice President; 8. Mohan Mohnani; 9. Shirley Vidal; 10. Jonina Ramos; 11. Nora Vitente; 12. Lucita Villar - Secretary; 13. Ms. Susan Dino - Instructional Assistant; 14. Delma Carrido; 30. Debbie Banaag.

Chinese spread Asian awareness

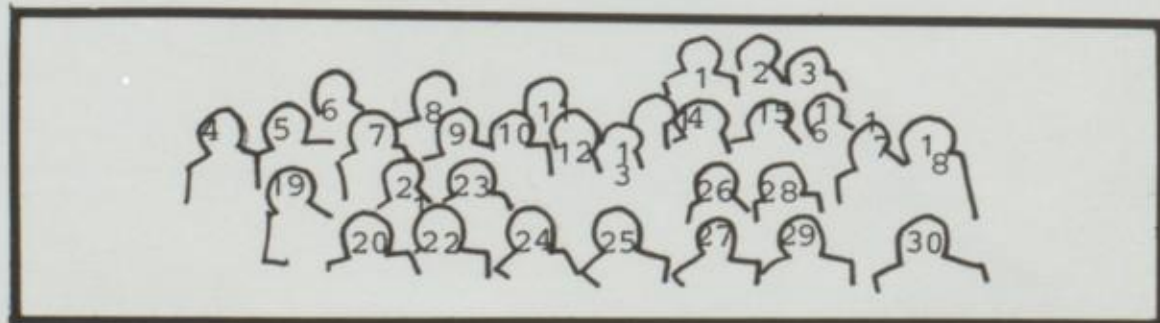

Awareness of Asian culture is the Chinese Student Association's goal through group sponsored activities. Intra-cultural events allow members to mix with people of other races, while money raising projects are for socio-service purposes.

Providing the chance to understand Chinese culture and achieve a sense of cultural sisterhood and brotherhood, the club is open to all interested persons. Koreans and Vietnamese contribute to activities such as ethnic food sales. A skating party and pot luck dinner were also sponsored by the association with the help of Ms. Gladys Chinn, acting advisor.

A. Sue Tang offers ginger, sourballs, and shrimp chips to prospective customers.

B. The Chinese Student Association includes: 1. Dick Truong; 2. Chester Wong; 3. Jolene Tom; 4. Douglas King; 5. Kenny Ng; 6. Chuck Lee - Treas.; 7. Roland Szeto - Sec.; 8. Richard Fernandez; 9. Samoans solve adjustment problems

The Franklin Samoan Students Association is a 30 member group in its second year. Participants are encouraged to be involved in all school activities, and are presently trying to get Samoan sports such as cricket and rugby at Franklin.

Working with the staff, the organization aids in solving problems of Samoan students. Language is a barrier for some Samoans and help is offered by the club to students having trouble with adjustment.

Activities of the association include practicing and teaching Samoan dances and songs, and educating people about their culture.

A. Relaxing in the Student Activity Center are Samoan students (L to R) Ben Titialee and Usoalii Taamu.

B. The members of the Franklin Samoan Association are: 1. Pales Taamu; 2. Sauni Vau - Pres.; 3. Joseph Titialee - Fundraising Coordinator; 4. Roger Vau; 5. Rex Thompson - Treas.; 6. Junior Stevens - Co-Activity Coordinator; 7. Mr. Ale Pele - Advisor; 8. Iese Segi - Sports Coordinator; 9. JoAnn Siva - Co-Vice Pres.; 10. Ann Fontes; 11. Taulima Faaitamai - Co-Sec. Not pictured: Peni Fagata - Co-Vice Pres.; Lani Manulauti - Co-Sec.; Mary Hayes - Co-Activity Coordinator.

Business Club Cashes In

Experience and an understanding of how the world of economics work is the Business Club's main asset to Franklin. Through the sales of corsages, stick-pins, calendars, and carnations, members apply the skills they learn in their business education classes. Some members also help Ms. LaBelle's Distributive Education class operate the students Quaker Shoppe before school and during both lunch periods to further their knowledge in business education.

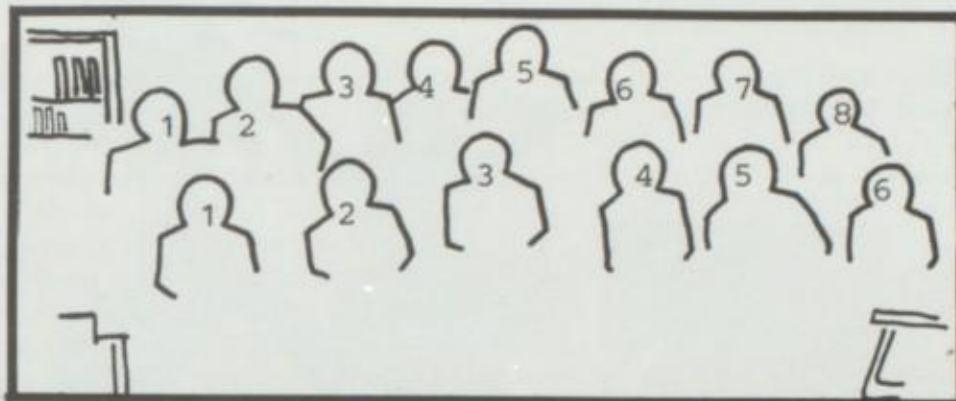

A. Linda Okazaki and Anita Wong listen to ideas for a fundraising event.

B. Shing Chin sells a lollipop to an eager customer.

C. Ms. LaBelle shows members the calendars they will be selling.

D. Sarah Colwell.

Cheersquad Promotes Spirit

Triumphant as the "Most spirited", the Cheersquad brought home the spirit pennant from the Washington Cheerleading Camp at Ellensburg.

The Cheersquad is unique with four out of the 12 being males. Elected by their peers at an assembly last spring, the squad supports all Franklin teams and activities.

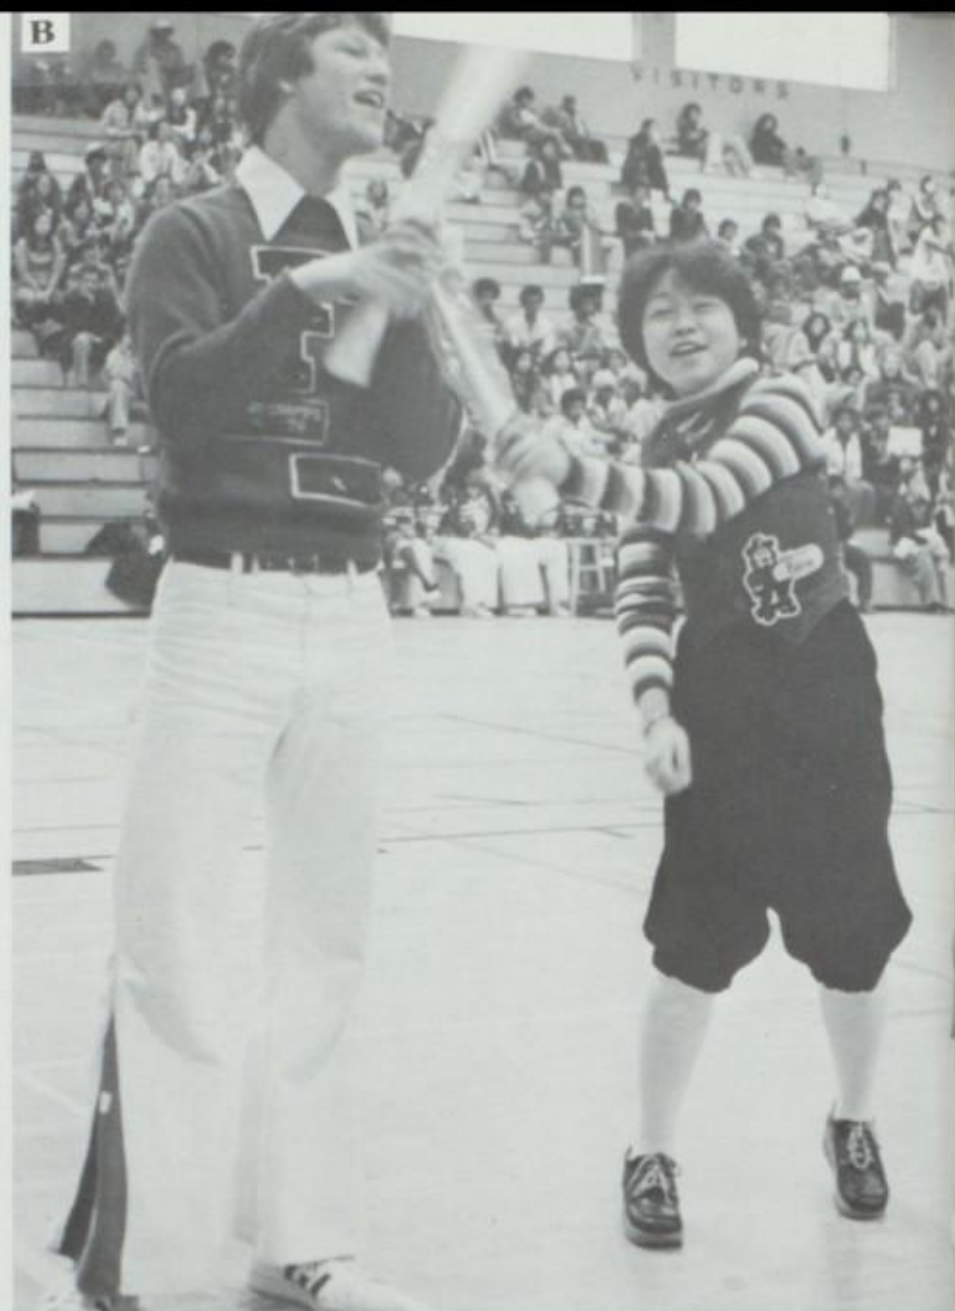

Homecoming balloons, bake and button sales, and a Hire-a-Hand auction are some fundraisers of the group. Money goes toward helping defray expenses and for a fund for future cheerleaders.

Acting advisors are Betty Sawyer, Linda Koura, and Benjamin Canada as the Cheersquad sought to spread among the student body.

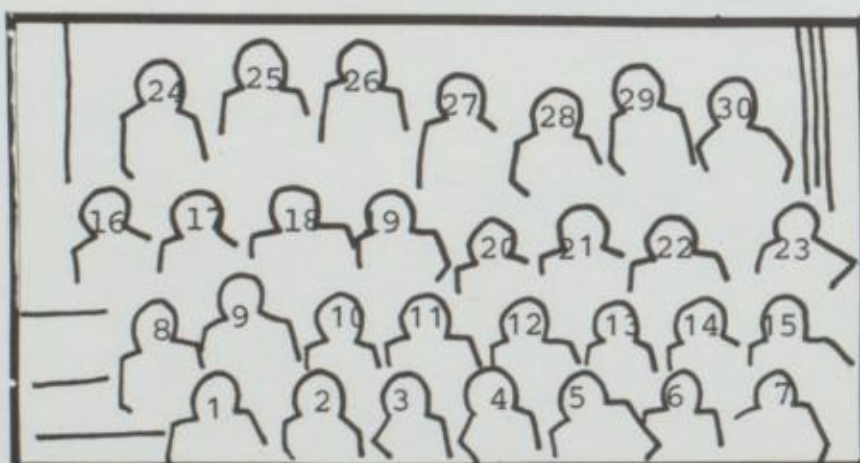

A. Toni Jackson, Kim Phair, Antoinetta Jones, and Janine Drebin watch the action at the Homecoming game.

B. Mascots Peter Melin and Janet Okazaki help the Junior section during a sports award assembly.

C. Jackie Lefebvre makes her first appearance at the Homecoming assembly.

D. Hedy Valdez finishes a yell at a football game.

E. The spirited Pep Club members are, (L to R): 1. Myra Barnett; 2. Patricia Trosclair; 3. Madeline Williams; 4. Leslie Harper; 5. Faye Brown; 6. Janine Drebin; 7. Emilie Reason; 8. Yvonne Phillips; 9. Meg Smith; 10. Sherry Cal; 11. Debbie Banaag; 12. Laura Huggins; 13. Susan Banks; 14. Hedy Valdez - Pres.; 15. Faye Ames; 16. Kimetha Dyer; 17. Toni McKinney - Vice Pres.; 18. Pieces with Pep

Spirit and enthusiasm link the Franklin Pep Club together. Members help to enliven student pride and spirit by decorating the halls for Homecoming, giving parties for the football and basketball teams, and attending most of the sports events.

Adding support to the Pep Club are the three Franklin Mascots. Jackie Lefebvre, Peter Melin, and Janet Okazaki assist the Cheersquad and Pep Club at the assemblies and sports events to keep the Quaker Spirit alive and well.

Artists In Action

Talented Franklin students who have a concern for their environment are contributing their skills for improvement of Franklin's drab, lifeless hallways. Meg Smith, a Sophomore, is responsible for the creations of the Quaker in the South entrance way and the Quaker on the West wall of the S.A.C. Also contributing to the appearance of our school is the group of students who helped to decorate the entrance way of the Career Center.

The beautiful concept is that the artists are voluntarily giving their time and talents for the visual benefit of everyone at Franklin.

A. Meg Smith adds detail to the Quaker in the south entrance way.

Vendors Master Art of Selling

The ten member female squad masters the art of selling tickets and refreshments at all home basketball games. An out-of-league fund raising game against Juanita was also tended by the squad and brought in approximately $519.

The vendors attend both men and women's games so over $600 are expected to go towards the A.S.B. fund from the concession sales. All ticket sales contribute to the Metro Sports fund.

Mr. Vernon Bean supervises and assists the group should problems arise. Some situations the squad encounters include hassles for free admittance, students showing invalid activity cards, or others asking for free food.

Regular ticket and concession people reap the rewards of a pass to all Metro basketball games and a dinner at the end of the season.

A. Reba Hilliard and Liza McArthur tend the ticket booth while a customer waits.

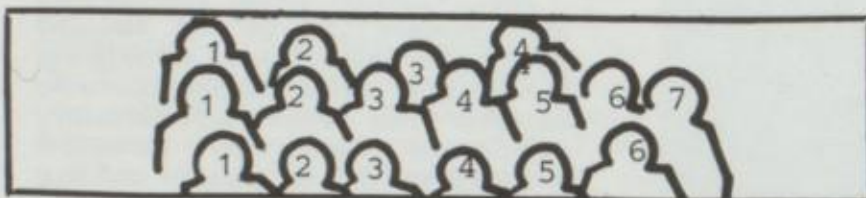

B. Waiting on the order of two basketball spectators are Kim Manney and Pauline White. Not pictured: Mr. Vernon Bean, Brenda Boswell, Mayme Chinn, Araceli Esteban, Nikki Grant, Jackie Jamero, Robin Jones, and Pauline White.

Jazz Groups Swing To Reno

With a highly motivated group of 18, Franklin's Jazz Lab participates in the 1978 Reno International Jazz Festival in March. Under the expert baton of Ed Lee, the Jazz Lab performs during school assemblies and make appearances at events such as The First Annual Seattle Talent Search Contest. Held in the Arena, Jazz Lab took the third place prize of scholarships. Funds for the trip to Reno are raised through a talent show, the pancake breakfast, bake sales, and a paper drive.

Sister to the Jazz Lab, is the Jazz Choir. With its 20 members, the Choir received high honors at its recent appearance in Reno. Like the Jazz Lab, the Jazz Choir performs at school assemblies and outside affairs, such as the Bi-centennial High School Quiz held at Temple DeHirsch. Their performance there was filmed by channel 7, and narrated by Kim Marriner.

Band & Flag Squad March to Musical Pieces

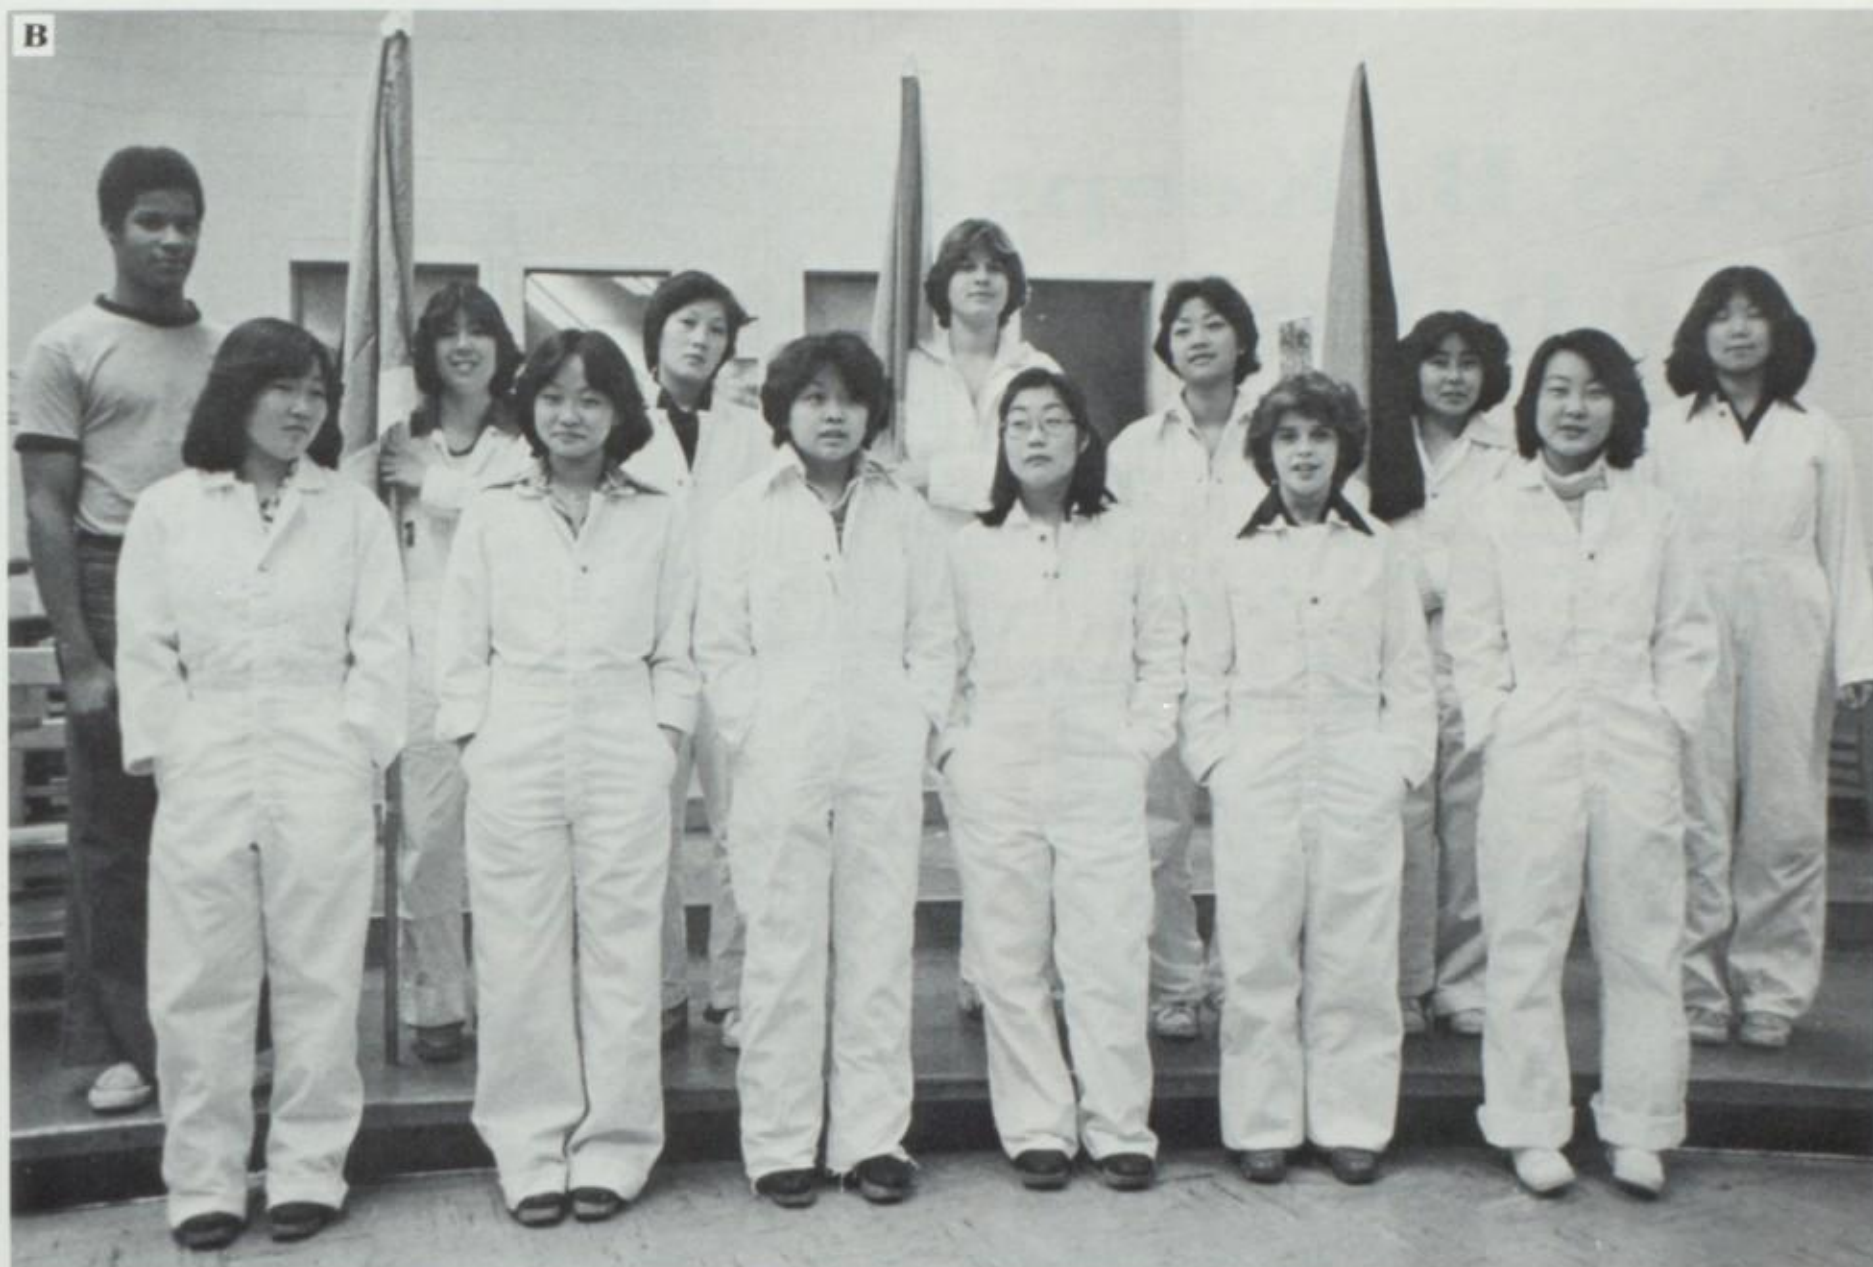

A. Making music from the bleachers are Sherry Cal, Jon Frazier, John Guilfoil, Loren Dong, Frank Farrington, and Virginia Cook.

Their presence is heard before they're seen. With bellowing drums and crashing cymbals, the Franklin High Marching and Concert Band makes their appearance. Producing more than just music, they help boost spirit and pride. This mighty Quaker spirit was especially evident during the homecoming game with the band displaying a letter formation at halftime.

In addition to games and assemblies, the band participates in various events such as the King Bowl Festival and march in parades around the state.

Adding color and flair to the marching band is the flag squad. This dedicated 13 member group practices daily after school, rain or shine, during the fall. Their efforts are seen on the field at all football games.

B. The Flag Squad includes: 1st Row: 1. Susan Hada; 2. Susan Kawasaki; 3. Janet Okazaki; 4. Linda Higashiyama; 5. Gretchen Sabel; 6. Stacy Terashita. 2nd Row: 1. Kevin Jones; 2. Lucy Sunohara; 3. Christina Ng; 4. Cindy Thompson; 5. Mary Yee; 6. Chris Akutsu; 7. Camille Sata.

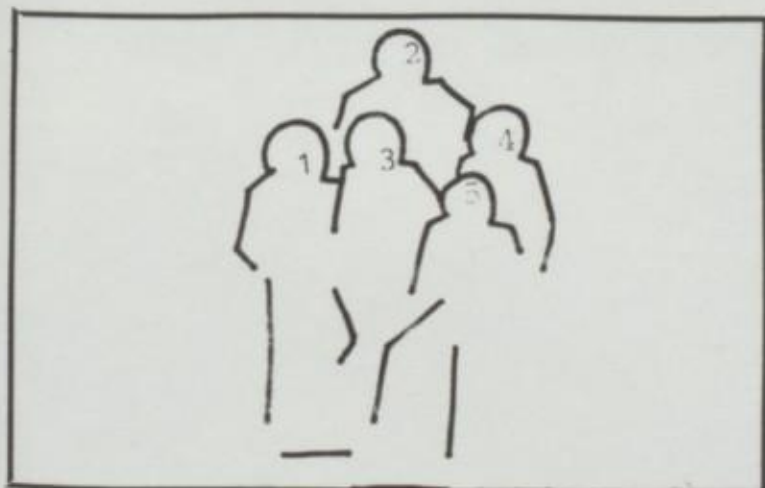

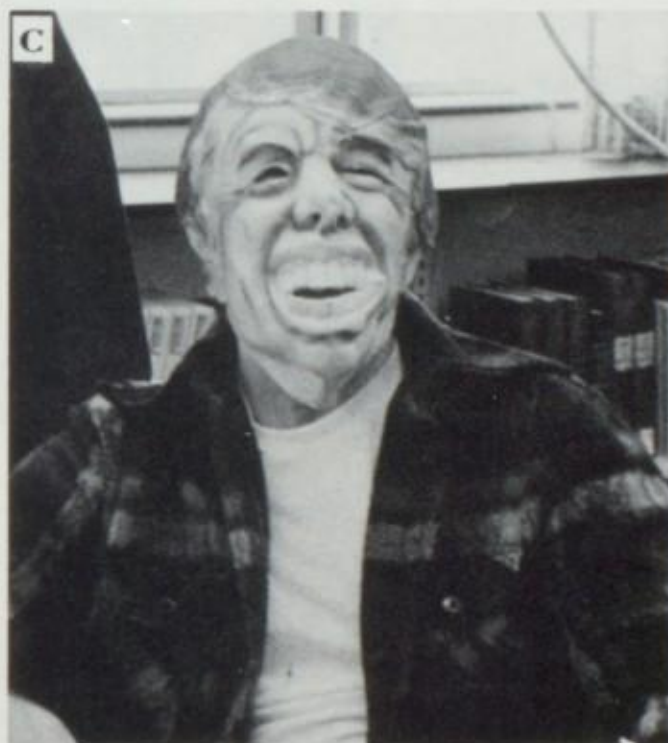

C. Members of the Band are: 1st Row: 1. Lisa Riddle; 2. Lisa James; 3. Lisa Williams; 4. Rachel Woo; 5. Sandy Bishop; 6. Patricia Ikeda; 7. Jenny Griffin; 8. Wendy Kawakami. 2nd Row - 1. Greg Kogita. 3rd Row: 1. Ed Hebrahm; 2. Sally Eckert; 3. Ricky Dunston; 4. Earl Jones; 5. Doug Mar; 6. Frank Farrington; 7. Jon Fraser; 8. Danny Welsh; 9. Bobby Teranishi. 4th Row: 1. Martina Monce; 2. Matthew Vining; 3. Jay Yamamoto; 4. Tony Sanders; 5. Randy Evans; 6. Kevin Jones; 7. Ed Lee, Music Department Head. Missing band pieces: Chris De Coster, Frank Okamura, Paul Walker.

A.S.B. Keeps Activities Going

The Associated Student Body officers lead the way for involvement in all activities. They help promote spirit for football games by having lunchtime rallies and raise money through the pancake breakfast, selling T-shirt iron-ons, and having a fundraising basketball game against Juanita. The A.S.B. fund's primary source, however, comes from the sale of activity cards. The officers take the responsibility for surpassing their goal of 800 cards by stressing the deadline and increasing the value of the activity card. Students cannot participate in athletics without it and seniors are banned from activities such as the prom and luncheon unless one is purchased. The sale concluded with approximately 825 cards sold.

In order to prepare for their year long stint, the officers attend the Mount Olympus Leadership Conference during the summer. Delegates learn more about themselves, human relations, and bring back these leadership skills and fund-raising ideas with them.

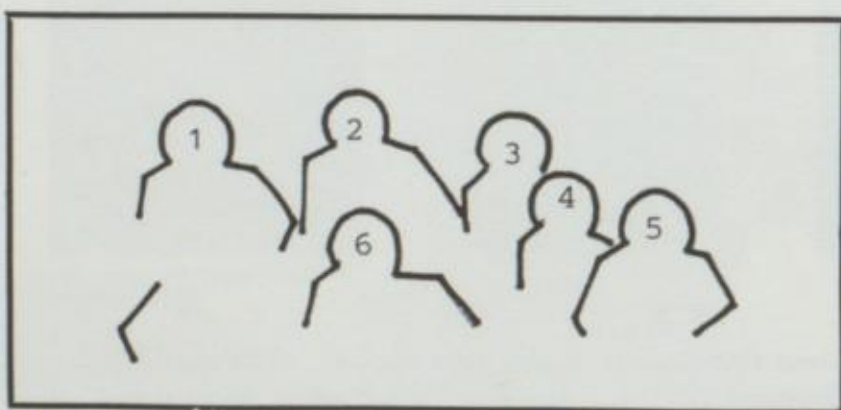

A. Accenting the positive are the A.S.B. officers: 1. Kim Manney, treasurer; 2. Lindsey Williams, president; 3. Jackie Jamero, secretary; 4. Jeff West, vice-president; 5. Reba Hilliard, chairperson of chairpersons.

Conversing over the calendar of events are: Julie Liu and Craig Kuwahara.

Student Council Gains Class Representatives

The Student Council advances with the addition of class representatives. Five seniors, one junior and two sophomores are elected in the fall to represent their peers at the bi-monthly meetings.

The council gives the opportunity for students to voice complaints and make suggestions for improving the school. Problems such as the faulty lighting, the hazardous football field (formerly a city dump), and repainting the school are discussed.

Members include club representatives as well as class representatives. All of them work on scheduling upcoming events on the activity calendar to support their respective groups. Each representative is designated by the wearing of NASC (National Association of the Student Council) pins.

African Drum Ensemble Creates Steps and Rhythms

Creativity is the key note of the African Drum Ensemble. Members design and produce their own costumes, steps, and rhythms. This effort is essential to the authentic effect of their performance during assemblies at Franklin, as well as at other Seattle schools. The ideas for the women's dance routines come from traditional African dances which they mix together with their own individual style and the bongo rhythm created by the men. To keep their act together, members practice everyday during class, and after school when they have a performance coming up. Master drummer, Steve Rogers, and the leader of the dance group, Vanessa Emerson together head the ensemble under the direction of Mr. Ed Lee.

A. Drummers (L to R) Richard Jones, Bobby Hays, Clarence Robinson and Lonnie Pierce combine their beats for a smooth rhythm.

Skating Club Rolls in $$$ for New Skates

The newly-formed Skating Club is rolling toward the goal of buying new skates for Franklin. When they have enough skates, the club plans on holding skating parties in the gym, thus utilizing their purchase and saving money from rink rental fees.

The group sponsors skating parties in their effort to raise money, with their first on January 9 at the Skate King. Two hundred and twelve skaters showed and the group gained a profit of $151.50. The Skating Club has $300 to buy 8 to 9 pairs of new skates, $50-$100 to repair used skates, and the rest to put in a reserve fund.

A. The Skating Club gets rolling with the help of Myra Barnett, Darien Guthrie, President Antoinetta Jones, and Diane Green. Not pictured: Donald Beamon, Phyllis Craig, Eric Cross, Nancy Israel, Toni McKinney, and advisor Carol Wiitimaki.

A new nameplate and a smaller group characterize the '77-'78 Tolo newspaper staff. Changing the nameplate from "Franklin Tolo" to simply "The Tolo" with an Indian design, Mark Houge accents the Northwest environment with an Indian theme. "Tolo" comes from a Chinook tribal saying, "Nika Tolo Yaka", which means "To achieve above and beyond."

The newspaper staff's job is to report every three weeks on the activities and sentiments happening at Franklin. To enable production, they finance the publication by selling ads and try to meet their deadlines on time.

A new feature in the Tolo is the "Totem Poll", where Franklin students are surveyed on a current issue. Cub reporters from Mrs. Barbara Nilson's Journalism I class also contribute to the content of the Tolo.

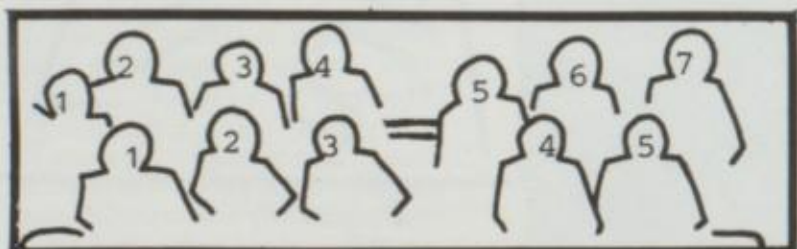

A. Michelle Lefebvre reaches for heads in the copy box.

B. Jackie Jamero is caught by surprise.

C. Sandi Bitterman pastes up her page.

D. Contributing Journalism I students are: 1. Debra Rivers; 2. Lydia Garner; 3. Juliette Dong; 4. Sherry Cal; 5. Susan Pierini; 6. Lorie Hungate; 7. Erin Williams; 8. Brad Schwartz; 9. Alan Sugahara; 10. Mark Washburn. Not pictured: Cesar Apodaca.

Tolo Staff Keeps Puzzle Informed

Annual Staff Organizes Pieces

The 1978 Tolo Annual is truly unique with the first color senior section in its 65 years of publication. With an additional color photo essay, the costs total approximately $9,000. Members sell ads to businesses and sponsors to help finances.

Piecing together all the different elements of Franklin is a challenge to the yearbook crew. The staff of 20 toils sixth period, after school, and during their free periods in order to meet deadlines. The bonus of a free sixteen-page supplement in the spring is awarded for promptness.

A. Cropping pictures is annual advisor Ms. Barbara Nilson.

Hi Mister Pettie!

I'm so glad I have had you for a teacher at Franklin! His teachers like you that make education fun and fulfilling. Thank-you for caring about me - I'm glad you called my Mom when I started to complete all those ~~excused~~ absences in Physics. I wish I could have taken more of your classes, especially Photography but I guess time has ran out. Maybe someday I'll see a super-great movie in the theater and your name will be the one of who it was produced by and I can yell to everybody - that you were my Biology and Physics teacher in Hi School! Time seems to have flown by these past 3 years, I wish I could re-live them again because I have really had a great time

Here at Franklin! I'll always remember you Mister Pettie! Thank-you for all the memories you've given me and all the knowledge I've been able to learn from you!

Love, Jilva Ancheta

"California, here we come," is the main objective of the Class of '78, with Shari Michelson and Kris Taki organizing the trip.

Various fund raising activities were food sales, selling T-shirt iron-ons, and one disco which alone brought in $750.

Top in spirit and activity card sales, the seniors finish their puzzle here at Franklin. They deserve the title "Super Great '78".

A. Thomas Chan, President.

B. (L to R): Jamie Maeda, Treasurer; Walter Davis, Secretary; Robert Lim, Chairperson of Chairpersons; and Kris Taki, Vice President.

Who could forget a pink elephant wandering in the halls for Halloween or a witch without her broomstick or a bumble bee, all who won a prize for best costumes at the Haunted Hop held after school in the S.A.C.

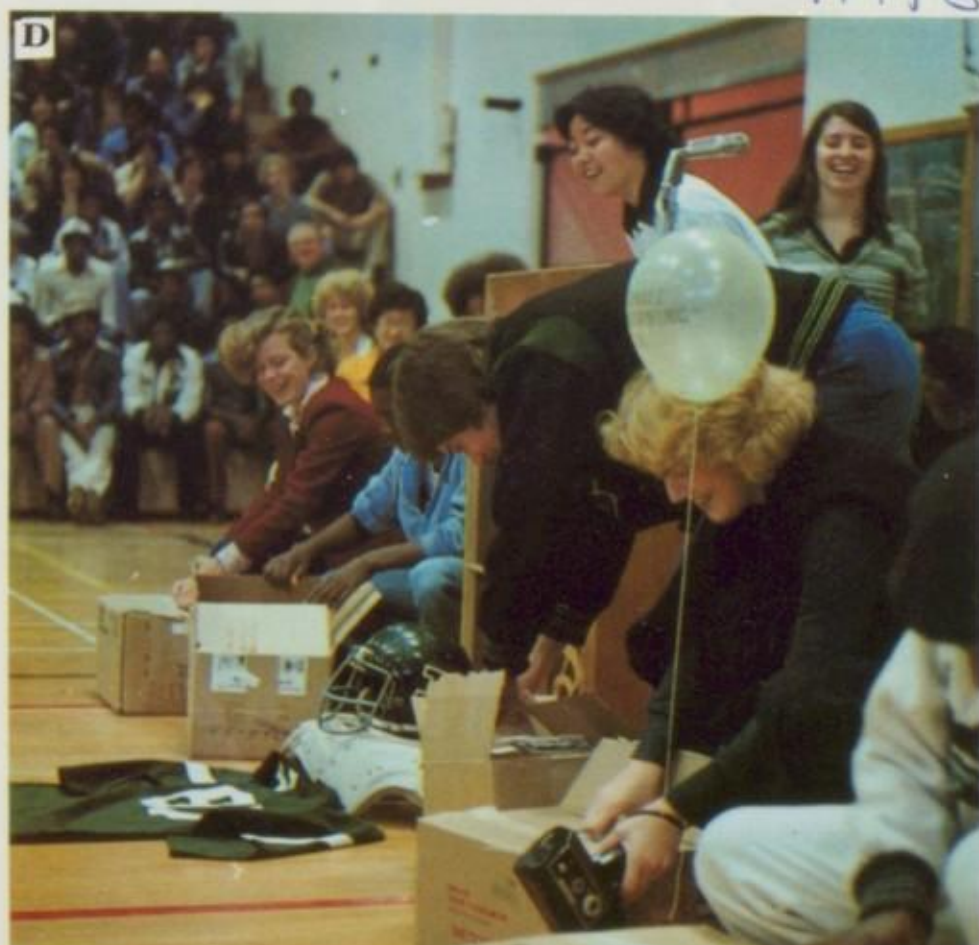

With "Reflections" chosen as the theme for the Homecoming assembly, the student body gathered to give respect to cheerleaders past and present, listen to the Jazz Lab and African Drum Ensemble, and watch Mr. and Ms. Quaker receive their mirrors a fitting award. Results of the "Turkey of the Year" balloting were announced with two students from each class receiving a Cornish game hen.

Candidates were presented at the assembly for Sophomore officers and Senior Class Secretary. Tradition returned to Franklin as mascots vied for selection with clever skits. Throughout the entire week, students were aroused to show their enthusiasm and pride in our school.

Mr. Petite-

I really feel like writing a book. I can truthfully say (no joke, please) that you are one of the best teachers and people at Franklin High School of The Quakers. You have some special charisma that miraculously saves your Physics class! (I dislike science) They kept tellin' me last year, "you're going like Mr. Petite, he's great!" Well, they were right, and you are great. ever since your first day with us, twirling that rubber gadget on a string and talking about gravity. I know Physics wouldn't be a bore. Of course, you did have some classroom-student help. I hope to visit you next year. Love always, Kim-Quaker (p. 6)

Athletics

Mr. Petite,
 I can't believe my three years at Franklin are over.
 You actually put up with me ~~man~~ for 2 years. I liked all the demonstrations you did. They helped me to understand better. Thank you for wanting my recommendation for Reed. I really appreciated it.
 Always,
 Loui Sumi

Gridders Have Iron Defense

Playing with spirit and unity, the Quakers end the season with four wins and five losses. This is one of the best records to come out of Franklin in recent years.

The Quaker victories include defeating the Roosevelt Riders, Ballard Beavers, Sealth Seahawks, and the homecoming game against the Nathan Hale Raiders. The latter was one of the most tense but exciting games of the season, with fans rooting them to a 12-6 overtime win.

According to Coach Byron Johnson, the Quakers move the ball and score points well, and has an outstanding defense.

One of the most significant accomplishments of the Big Green Machine is placing second in the league for rushing. They were also in contention for Metro and AAA Division championships but unfortunately did not place due to a loss to Queen Anne.

Harriers Move Full Force

"Charge!", the 1977-78 cross-country teams seem to exclaim. Coach Don Bundy's persistent training with weeks of exhausting practice every afternoon around Lake Washington proved quite profitable since both Quaker teams earned the Rainier Valley championship title. Rainier Beach, Cleveland, and Garfield were defeated for the title.

The men's other wins include Ballard, Shorecrest, and Queen Anne, totaling seven wins out of eleven. Ernest Fujii, captain, says, "We (men) had good momentum until the end." The season concludes with lower attendance due to injuries or illness.

It is the same story for the females except they suffered more. One person's absence meant forfeit from many events since Franklin has the minimum of five participants to make a team. The women have won four meets with six losses.

Captain for the females, Michelle Lefebvre, comments, "There are some strong sophomores and juniors," Ernest agrees. "The returning lettermen will bring a bright future."

Ladies Serve So-So Season

Although the Women's Volleyball Team is recently formed, Quakers prove to be highly skilled by defeating Garfield and coming within two points of victory against the Metro Champs, Queen Anne.

Spike, dig, and serve are the mechanics of playing but to enjoy a game, the players need teamwork and overall proficiency. Quakers are improving in these two areas. Inconsistent playing resulted in a season record of four wins and ten losses. This score, however, does not reflect their tremendous abilities. Ms. Wiitamaki remarks, "The team's caliber and potential were good and the games were lost by slim margins."

Softball Bats in Four Wins

The Franklin Women's Softball team, playing in their second season, end with four wins and twelve losses. One victory was over Queen Anne and the remainder were obtained from crossover games. Crossover games are those played in Franklin's division only. The highlight of the season was losing merely by one run to the best team in the league: Nathan Hale.

The team displayed improvements in both defense and offense despite the misfortune of an unsuccessful season. Several members who contributed to the team effort are: Lisa Hildreth, Most Valuable Player; Laura Hildreth, Captain; and Faye Brown, Coach's Award for Promoting Spirit.

Coach Tom Williams is more optimistic about next season. "They know how hard they have to work to be successful." He also remarks, "They understand what it takes to win: determination."

Golfers Putt Out

Sportsmanship and dedication prevails in the crew of golfers despite a season of few wins and many losses. This was largely due to the small turnout. Nevertheless, the putters regard this as a year for gaining experience and enjoying themselves.

The men end their season with one victory against Garfield and another due to a forfeit by Sealath, thus giving the Quakers a 2-9 record.

Due to low turnouts of women in other schools, Franklin's female putters met with more success. They conclude their season with five wins by forfeit and three losses.

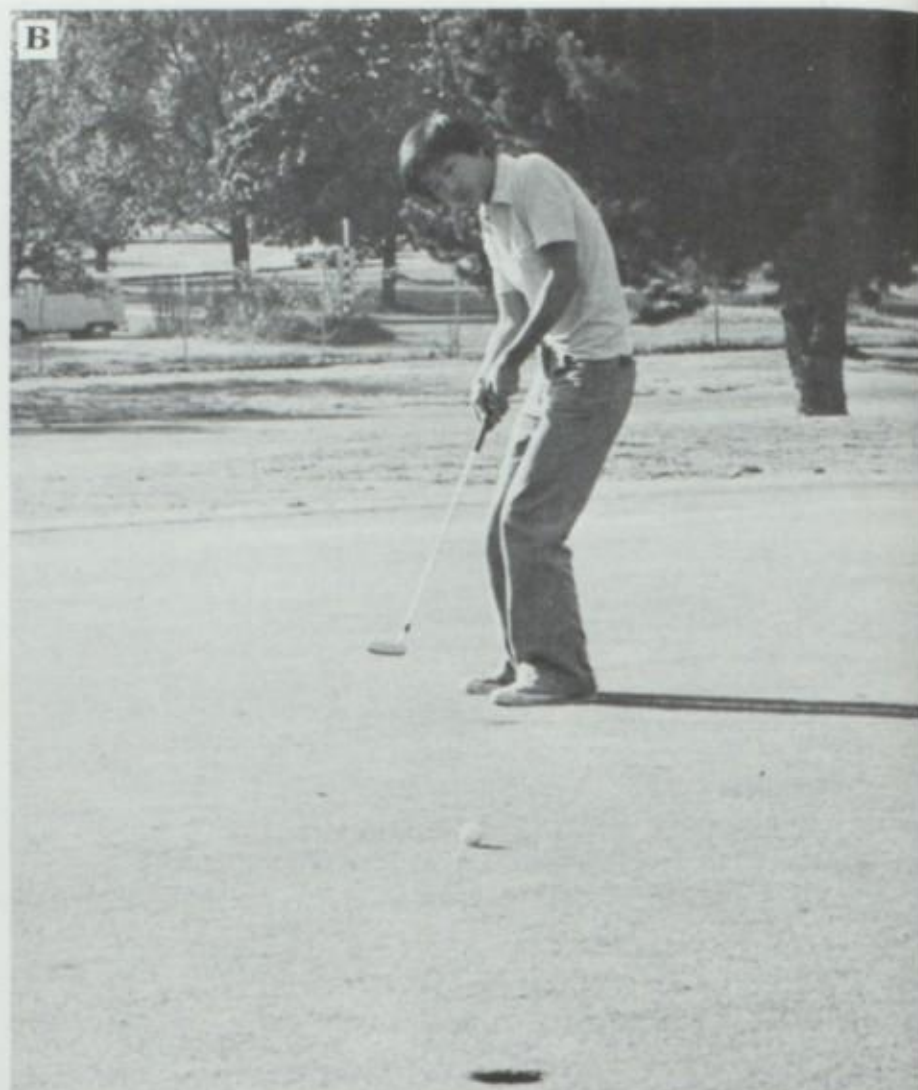

Mrs. Rybock, the new coach, sees much potential for next year's team. She hopes, however, to see more students participate.

For the first time in five years, the Men's Wrestling team has enough people to fill all of the weight classes. At the time of the deadline they have two victories over Cleveland, and Lakeside and two near wins against Rainier Beach and Garfield. Injuries plagued the team this season with individual forfeits costing the Quakers several matches. The Wrestlers have a relatively young team, with only one returning letterman and four seniors on the entire squad.

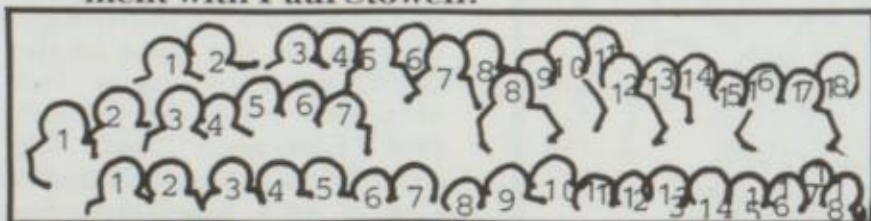

Volunteer assistant coach Rick Sinclair and head coach Dick Henrickson have drilled the squad in the fundamentals, and "have seen marked improvement in the wrestlers and their skills."

Enthusiastic Turnout Makes Big Splash

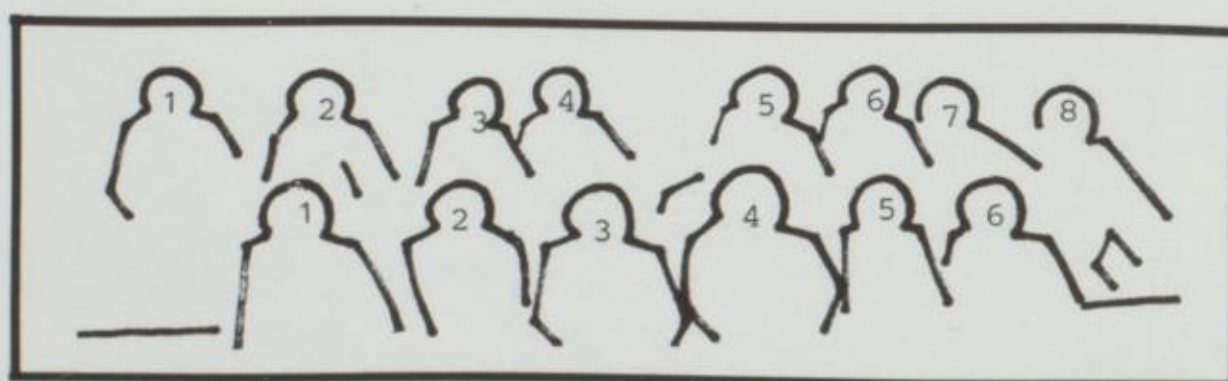

With 51 enthusiastic students on the swim team, 20 being seniors, 16 juniors, and 15 sophomores, the group has been successful in qualifying for the division meets over 18 times in the women's division and over 23 times in the men's.

Due to Coach Pat Holland's persistence, the Splashers are "better than ever". With help from Assistant Coaches Dan Spencer and Lance Lane, the swimmers are encouraged to complete at least 80 to 120 laps, which is 1800 to 3000 yards everyday. This prepares them to swim against other strong schools such as Garfield and Blanchet. The Quakers have defeated Lincoln and Cleveland.

Franklin excels in the 50-yard freestyle and the individual medley through the use of different strokes. These competitions include the use of the butterfly, breaststroke, backstroke, and freestyle. The team's competition is extremely stiff this year because the magnet transfer program has caused the divisions to be unbalanced.

After a two-year absence from the interscholastic sports program, gymnastics has returned with the flexible Quakers flipping through the air and rolling themselves into a ball. The women will compete in three meets to work on one or all four events. They are the balance beam, uneven parallel bars, vault and floor exercises.

Due to the difficulty of finding a coach, the team started a late season (December 12), thus banning Quakers from the first four meets. None of the gymnasts has competed in the high-school level. Coach Wiitamaki explains, "It's a new experience for all of us."

Women Dribblers Keep Third Place

Aggressiveness, speed, and a zone pressure type defense are all factors in the teamwork involved in playing Quaker basketball. The starting line-up consists of three sophomores and two juniors. These ladies have gained experience and displayed excellence in sportsmanship throughout the season. The team have played exceedingly well and have proven it by keeping third place in league play.

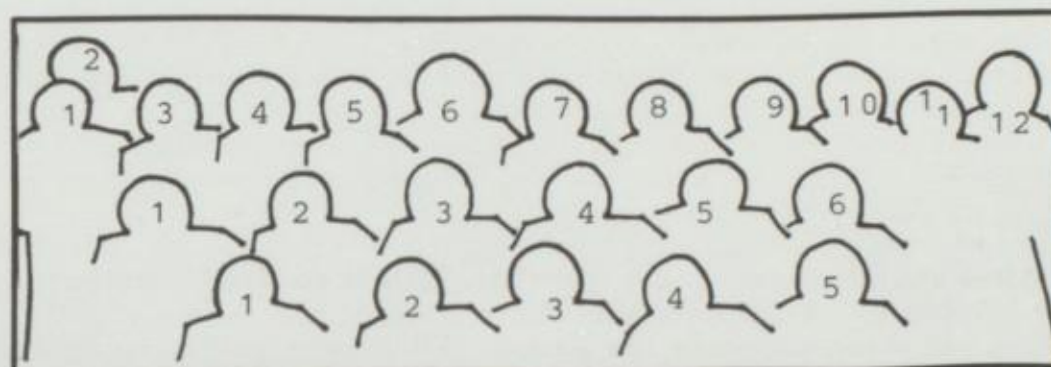

After spending two years solo, Mr. Luft is co-head coach with Mr. Williams. Together, they have guided the ladies and encouraged them through the games. They have rallied support and this resulted in the dedication and enthusiasm that prevailed. They comment, "The girls are very coachable. They listen well and have terrific personalities. They're just a super group of girls to work with."

A. Robin Santos takes the ball downcourt with Toni McKinney ready to defend her.

B. Up to make two points is Jannel Thurman.

J.V.'s Perfect Fast Break

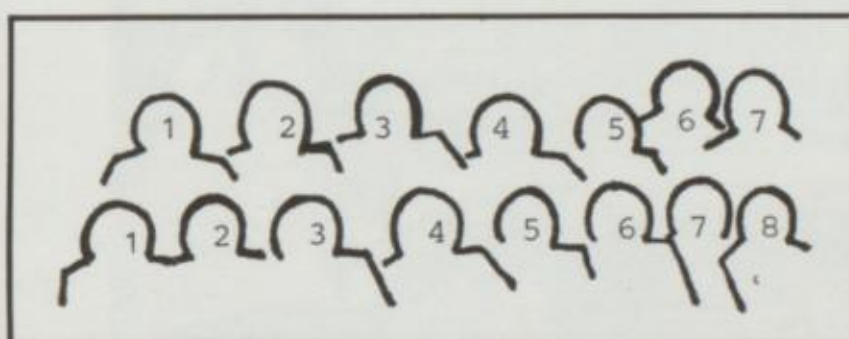

Coach Byron Johnson is busy once again preparing the junior varsity basketball team for varsity level next year. With several outstanding players such as Easton, Hedspeth, Altchech, Miles, Chambliss, Johnson, and Dunston, the team has accomplished many impressive victories. The win in the first game against Sealh was due to a last second shot by Bruce Stripling. Another good game was against Shoreline in which Quakers won 83-80. These numerous comebacks against such teams as Sealh and Shoreline resulted in the J.V. team ending the season with a record of 7-11.

A strict routine of training and discipline under Coach Johnson's careful guidance resulted in a greatly improved team. Defense was greatly improved and they excelled in the fast break. Coach Johnson remarks, "J.V. basketball is truly interesting."

A. Ron Hedspeth pauses for a moment to look for an open man.

B. As he drives toward the basket, Ed Flanagan manages to pass his defensive opponent.

Quakers Aim for Metro Title

For the seventh straight year, the Quakers have made it to the league play-offs. Placing second in Division II after a bitter fight against Shorecrest, the Franklin Varsity Basketball Team remains in contention for state.

With the effective coaching of Mr. Dave Belmonte, the dribblers end the season with an impressive overall record of thirteen victories and six losses. The league score is 8-2 with extremely close losses (51-55, 52-54) only to Shorecrest. Both games were lost by last-minute free-throws made by the Scots.

Several games highlighted the season. Playing against Nathan Hale for the second time and Shorecrest for the third time were perhaps the most tense and exciting games. Franklin beat Hale by a narrow margin of one point but lost to Shorecrest for the division championship.

Another Quaker success is the picking of Mike Rheubottom as an All-Metro player. Coach Belmonte comments, "His smooth playing style and shooting was prevalent in all our games". "Rheu" averages nearly 18 points per game, thus boosting the Quakers to many of the victories.

Coach Belmonte is also extremely pleased with several of the other team members. He commented that the vast improvements of Chris Hawkins, Latrez Brice, Doyle Valley and John Buren contributed much to the success of the games.

A. Latrez Brice effortlessly puts one in to add to Franklin's lead.

B. Setting up a play is David Watkins.

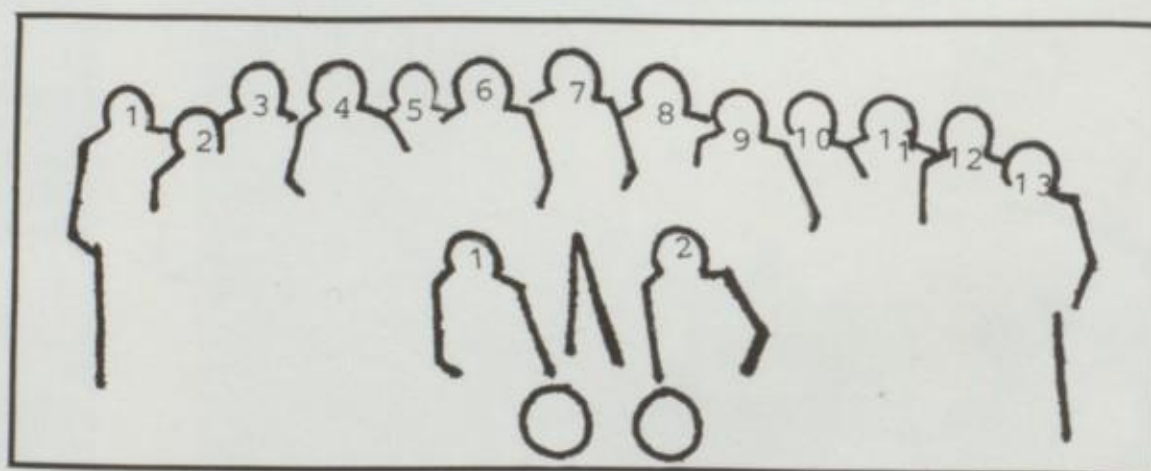

C. Time-out for Franklin to discuss the strategy that makes the Quakers great.

D. Center Latrez Brice tips the ball to "Rheu" as the third quarter begins against the Cleveland Eagles.
